Leads All States In Construction

WASHINGTON D.C.--- More than 63 per cent of Missouri's Interstate and Defense Highways are now open to traffic, Director of the Bureau of Public Roads Rex Whitton said today.

This is 10 per cent higher then the average for the nation, he said in the first quarterly report this year. The state has been allotted 1,119 miles of the highways, out of a total of 41,000. Only 13 miles remain for planning or engineering.

Director Whitton disclosed that 83 miles are now under construction, and 314 more miles are on the drawing board for construction, or for the acquisition of right of way. Cost of the work now in progress comes to $241 millions of which 90 per cent is paid by the federal government, and 10 percent by the state.

Since 1956 when the Interstate and defense system was approved by Congress, $467.7 million has been spent for the Interstate and Defense system of highways in Missouri, under the 90-10 percent formula.

ABC Roads

The Director also disclosed that 266 miles of the primary, secondary, and urban roads (the ABC system) are under construction, or are on the drawing board for future construction. Cost of the work in progress is $91 millions which is paid for by state and federal government matching on a 50-50 basis.

State Convention Opens In Sikeston

The Independent Order of Odd Fellows and Rebekahs opened a four-day state wide convention in Sikeston yesterday.

Today's session opened with a breakfast party at the Holiday Inn, honoring Lady Myrtle Hammond, auxiliary president Patriarchs Militant. At 8:30 a.m. they assembled at the I.O.O.F. Hall with greeting committees of all groups.

At 1 p.m. the department council and installation officers. At 4 p.m. was an assembly for the past president of the Rebekah Lodge, and at 6 p.m. decoration of Chivalry, at the American Legion Hall.

At 8:15 p.m. tonight will be open Grand Lodge ceremonies at the Legion Hall, as well as Rebekah Assembly.

On Tuesday morning at 7 a.m. will be a breakfast for past presidents of Rebekah Lodge, honoring Vice-President Jewell Shell acting president.

At 8:30 a.m. will be the conferring of degrees of Grand Lodge and at 9 a.m. degrees for Rebekah Assembly.

The afternoon session will find both lodges in regular session until 3 p.m. when there will be a memorial service.

At 7 p.m. will be the annual banquet with grand master Eugene Cole, Farmington as master of ceremonies at the Holiday Inn.

More Than 1,500 Attend Air Show

Airplane rides were given to guests, who had to pay a penney per pound for a ride. Jim Musick, manager of the Chamber of Commerce, said that over 42,000 pounds of people were given rides.

The skydivers average making 15 to 20 jumps per month in their performances that covers a tri-state area of Arkansas, Missouri and Tennessee.

The team is made up by Paul Ferguson, Don Ayers, Bob Thomas, Bert Alderson, and Larry Spence. Ferguson is captain of the team. They make there jumps from a Stinson V-77, which is piloted by Bill Nolan.

Milford Estes won the bombing contest. He came within a range of 42 feet of the target.

There were 26 planes on exhibit, including planes made by the Mooney Manufacturing Company, Cessana Manufacturing Company, Beech Manufacturing Company. There were private planes from Cape Girardeau, St. Louis, Jonesboro, Malden and Sikeston.

Two Benton Breakins

BENTON - Two service stations were broken into here early this morning according to Scott county sheriff, John Dennis.

Two cash registers, valued at $270 each, were taken from Urhahns and Stuckey's service stations.

Entry was made into the Stuckey station through a window. Taken, in addition to the register, were 21 cartons of cigarettes, $110 in cash, four boxes of cigars and candy and gum.

Dennis said the burglaries were committed between one and six a.m. this morning.

Franchising, which includes businesses ranging from art galleries to water softener services, is a $60 billion industry in the U. S. today.

There are over 2,000 different varieties of plastic flowers available today, compared with some 100 paper flower styles made before plastic blooms were introduced in the U. S. in 1958.

Two Thousand Dollar Robbery

GIDEON -- Two armed men robbed Gilbert H. Wilkerson and wife here late Saturday night of $1,200 in cash and a diamond ring valued at $800.

Willis Wingo, Gideon Chief of Police reported that one gunmen stuck a shotgun through a window where the Wilkersons were watching television, while the other gunmen jumped through a glass window with a small revolver.

The gunmen tied Mrs. Wilkerson up and left her in a hall way while they escorted her husband to a safe which was located in a back room.

The men wore nylon socks over their heads and were thought to have been drinking heavily. They were described as about middle aged and weighed about 190 pounds.

Two suspects were picked up early Sunday morning, but were released Sunday after taking a lie-detector test at Poplar Bluff.

Holobar Faces Kentucky Court

PADUCAH, Ky. -- Chester "Chet" Holobar, 30, Sikeston, faces court action today as he faces the County Court here at three p.m. stemming from a charge of defrauding an innkeeper of $187.59.

Holober, an employe of the Delta Home Improvement and Investment Company in Sikeston, was scheduled to appear last Monday, but was granted a continuance when his attorney was unable to appear with him.

This Kentucky fraud charge dates back to July 16, 1965 at the Continental Inn. He has been free on $1,000 bond.

Presently he is on one year probation in Scott County, Mo. after being convicted February 8 of writing an insufficient funds check Dec. 14, 1965 payable to cash on the First National Bank in Sikeston for $10. Scott County Magistrate Judge M. E. Montgomery also gave Holobar a 30 day suspended jail sentence after conviction.

Another employe of the Delta Home Improvement and Investment Company, Willie Doll, alias David Wingate, has not been apprehended to face a similar charge of defrauding an innkeeper. He is charged with not paying $154.23 to the Continental Inn.

It was thought that he was seen in Sikeston Saturday morning and Sunday afternoon.

However, he cannot be extradited to Kentucky because his charge there is not a felony.

Another employe of the Delta Home Improvement and Investment Company, Jim Hale, was freed last week after a charge of obtaining money under false pretense was dismissed by Trial Commissioner Roy Vance.

Hale was charged with obtaining $1,400 from Mrs. Chloe Collie, 65, for putting aluminum siding on her 20 feet by 24 feet house under false pretense.

Andrew Palmer, County Attorney, said that Mrs. Collie is going to file suit against Hale in Civil Court.

Memphis Trial Begins

MEMPHIS, Tenn., AP -- Joel A. Montgomery, chairman of the board of the First National Bank of Sikeston, Mo., goes on trial here today on an involuntary manslaughter charge in a six and one-half year old traffic fatality.

Jury selection was to begin this morning as state prosecutors readied their case against the 46-year-old wealthy businessman and Mrs. Betty Lou Sells, a pretty divorcee, also charged in connection with the death of Miss lenda Wiles.

The case was widely publicized prior to the ending of Montgomery's four year extradition fight with Memphis authorities. He finally surrendered himself last Feb. 15 when he flew here in his private airplane. He contended he was innocent and that the two-year statute of limitations ran out while he was still a Memphis resident.

At the time of the fatal accident, Montgomery was a local land developer. He moved back to Sikeston, his hometown, before he was indicted in 1962, however.

When the accident occurred, Montgomery, married and the father of three children, was riding in his car with Mrs. Sells and Miss Bobby Vance. Mrs. Sells was driving when the auto collided with the car in which Miss Wiles was a passenger.

Mrs. Sells was tried and convicted of involuntary manslaughter in a 1960 trial, but the decision was reversed by the State Supreme Court. Montgomery's indictment came after the reversal.

I.D. Cards At Sikeston

Application for identification cards, for persons 21 to 25 years old, will be issued for residents of Scott county, at the Sikeston Police Station, Wednesday, June 1, from 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The identification cards will be issued by the Missouri Department of Liquor Control, according to C. Baldwin Young, Cape Girardeau agent.

Issuing of these cards would drastically control the drinking in taverns by minors, and discourage the manufacture and sale of false identification cards. It would also help the legitimate persons engaged in sale of liquor and beer.

Those making application, must have two photos made, sign an application, and send a money order payable to Department of Revenue in amount of $1.50.

The card will be laminated and unable to be altered in any manner.

Huge Amount Of Wire Stolen

A huge amount of copper wire was reported stolen today from the Airport School storage shed over the weekend. It is estimated that the wire was valued close to $750.

Police are investigating.

Minor Injuries On Bootheel Roadways

Minor injuries were reported over the weekend on the Bootheel Roads.

Four teenagers were slightly injured Sunday at 11:45 a.m. in an accident six miles west of Lutesville on highway 34.

A 1962 Volkswagen, driven by Delbert Slinkard, 16, South Roxana, Ill., failed to make a turn, ran off the road and overturned.

Injured were Slinkard, Donna Underwood, 15, Wood River, Ill., with head injuries; Grace Cloninger, 19, Wood River, head and chest injuries; and Vurnis Eunnels, 16, Jackson, head injury.

All injured were taken to the Lutesville Clinic.

In a three - car collision Sunday at 1:15 p.m., eight miles north of Sikeston on highway 61, Barry Becker, 21, was arrested for careless and reckless driving.

A 1964 Volkswagen, driven by James Pemberton, 21, Sikeston, was waiting to make a left turn, when a 1964 Pontiac, driven by Becker, 21, of Sikeston, tried to pass him on the right side, went into a skid and spun around striking a 1966 Comet, driven by J. R. Emerson, 21, Oran. No one was injured in the accident.

In an accident Sunday at 11:30 p.m., four and one-half miles north of Sikeston on a gravel road, a 1965 pickup truck, driven by Jackie James, 22, route two, struck and killed a cow.

Some hen eggs caused an accident Sunday at 9 a.m., four miles north of Sikeston on a gravel road. A 1963 Rambler, driven by Dalton McCoy, 19, Sikeston, had placed some eggs in his car, when some of them fell on the floor of the car.

He reached down to pick them up when he lost control of the car, left the roadway and struck a telephone pole. He was not injured.

Two cars sideswiped Sunday at 2:30 p.m. on highway 62 and Miner, with no one being injured.

The cars were a, 1966 Ford, driven by Galena Poston, 70, Unionville, and a Dodge, driven by James Turk, 23, Sikeston.

In an accident Saturday at 7:45 p.m. on highway 61, three miles north of Sikeston, a 1966 Chevrolet pickup, driven by Billy Casey, 36, East Prairie, sideswiped a 1948 GMC truck, driven by Curtis Jewell, 54, W. Memphis, Ark.

Woodrow Cochran, 33, Bloomfield, driving a 1962 Ford on highway 60, two miles east of Charleston, was arrested for driving while intoxicated, Saturday at 8:30 p.m.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

1966 looks upon a sad world . . . filled with maniacal international politicians jockeying for power. The effects reach into every home in our land. Emotions are pressured with endless strain. In spite of every march and counter march, picketing and counter picketing, exception groups and small pressure groups never have and never will rule our land. The Spirit of '76 is just as strong in most American hearts today as the feeling was at the birth of our nation 190 years ago come July 4.

We believe a show of flags on national holidays on the homes of every community in our land is an important demonstration. It shows the world that America stands united in love of our country no matter how far apart we appear to be in our opinions.

Decoration Day is May 30.

We believe the flag should fly from every door as a testimonial to our national unity and love of country. Every American should join the host of flag flyers. Get a home flag set now. Fly it on your home on May 30th . . . on Flag Day, July 4 . . . and on all the important national holidays throughout the year. Get a flag. Any flag . . . Old Glory, of course. Get one anywhere and fly it. Make this a must on your list of things to do. Show the children how to raise the colors in the morning and take them down at twilight. This is the American way and should be preserved forever, God willing, as a national tradition.

For those who wish, we offer at cost as a public service a very good, big 3x5 foot flag set complete with flag, 6-foot staff, halyard, mounting bracket and screws, flag etiquette folder and history in a self storage box. You may get your flag by coming to 205 South New Madrid St., Sikeston, or mailing $3.50 for the flag set plus 50¢ for postage to The Daily Sikeston Standard at address here.

When the flags are counted on Decoration Day . . . be sure the red, white and blue is flying on your home.

THE ROLE OF ADVERTISING IN NEWSPAPERS

It costs a great deal of money to print and publish newspapers. It is necessary to make large investments in machinery, paper and ink; and the salaries and wages of the employees add up to many dollars each day. Some of the money necessary to pay these costs comes from the sale of newspapers to readers. However, by far the largest amount comes from advertisers.

Newspaper advertisers are businessmen with services and products they would like to sell. The question may be asked as to why they are willing to spend money for ads in newspapers. The answer is simple -- it's a good business. It's the best way they have of telling the public about their products or services. Newspaper ads attract and develop their customers. Their advertising is an investment that enables them to keep in business to make a fair profit, and to grow.

In fact, if it were not for advertising, the price of your newspaper would be more than many people could afford. At the same time, the mass distribution made possible by newspaper advertising lowers the cost of the products you buy.

It should be of interest to realize that newspaper ads can generally be divided into four groups:

(1) The national or regional ads. These might be for gasoline; a new brand of lipstick; a breakfast cereal, or a new car. They are usually about products that can be purchased in most stores in your community.

(2) The local or retail ads. These include department store, food and other ads to which the family turns to plan its shopping.

(3) The classified or "want" ads. Here we have an almost endless list of anything or any services that can be bought or sold. Used cars, houses for sale, apartments for rent and job opportunities are all included. With "want" ads, you may also advertise to find a lost wallet, to hunt a new job, to buy or sell a used baby crib, a second-hand t. v. or a bicycle.

(4) Public notice or legal ads. These are ads usually required by law and designed to keep the public informed on meetings, purchasing and other activities of local government units.

WILL THE REAL SENATOR STAND UP?

The Congress has now passed the administration's absurd rent-subsidy program, a plan to subsidize an individual family's rent payments even if the family makes $10,000 a year. But the victory was a close one and might not have been a victory at all had this been anything but a Congressional election year.

The House initially passed the bill by a narrow margin despite the advice and pleas of such level-headed Congressmen as Representative Paul C. Jones, who joined with a vanishing breed in Washington; lawmakers who vote for or against a measure on its merits and with an eye to the ballot box.

When the measure went to the Senate, some forecast it would not enjoy the same success as it had in the House because several Democrats had voiced their opposition.

Our state's senior U. S. Senator, Stuart Symington, was one who doubted the need for such a billion dollar law, particularly in view of a greatly-expanded war in South Viet Nam and because of an expansion of domestic programs.

We'll give you just one guess, however, as to the vote of Missouri's very junior U. S. Senator, Edward V. Long.

Senator Long, as expected, voted for the bill, joining a small brand of ultra-liberals that would undoubtedly vote to give away anything if it meant votes in their home state. There were enough Edward Longs, unfortunately, in the Senate to assure the success of the rent subsidy program.

Apparently only a few Missourians are interested in the voting records of their Congressmen. This is a sad-but-true observation, it seems to us, in view of the absence of criticism of the ultra-liberal voting record of such men as Senator Long.

We can recall the days when Senator Long was a good legislator, one who often voted intelligently on matters affecting the public. He was almost always on the side of fiscal responsibility and budgetary integrity.

That Senator Long was a member of the State Senate.

Will the real Senator Long stand up?

RESPECT FOR COURTS IS A MUST

It would be a great thing for all concerned if our courts could take their case directly to our supreme tribunal -- the American people.

For there is obviously a mounting public dissent from many of the actions and decisions of courts of all levels -- city, county, state, federal, district and supreme.

It isn't too rare to hear such comments as:

"They're making laws instead of ruling on 'em."

"If I was a cop, I'd quit chasing speeders and drunks. Why risk your neck when the traffic courts let 'em go anyway?"

"Justice and common sense have nothing to do with it. It's what's in the fine type that the judges go for."

"Did you see where some 21-year-old kid was in court on a burglary rap and the judge put him away for a year for contempt because the kid kissed his wife in court as they took him to jail? How about THAT?"

No one is saying such comments are valid. But they're being made -- and by more and more people who aren't criminals or in any kind of legal trouble.

The vast majority of our judges are scrupulously fair and highly intelligent, completely sincere and honest and work hard at their jobs. But enough of them have said or done something on the bench to dim public confidence in law and order and thus aid and abet the efforts of a lot of assorted characters who are working hard toward that very goal.

Contempt of court -- even outside the court -- is lethal to government and to society. The foundation of the American system of justice, democracy and fair play is the court -- and too many people are electing to make and obey their own laws, period.

The remedy?

Well, part of it, at least, is for the courts to be ever conscious of their dignity and public image. And for the rest of us to set an example of solid and even militant respect for law and order and for those charged with administering it.

Otherwise, we're heading for real trouble.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

LOS ANGELES -- One of the most dedicated devotees of Doddology in the arena of American politics is Sen. Dodd's fellow Democrat, Speaker Jesse M. Unruh of the California assembly.

Like the senator from Connecticut, the gentleman from California held big fund - raising dinners and has not accounted for the money he collected. Between 1964 and 1966, Unrush held two huge testimonial dinners which grossed around $400,000. Yet no one really knows what he has done with the money.

Unruh is quite brazen about this. "Money," he says, "is the mother's milk of politics."

Sen. Dodd has grossed around $400,000 from half a dozen testimonial functions since 1961 and this column has published the amounts which Dodd placed in his own bank account. Later a Dodd assistant justified this practice on the ground that senate salaries were too low and that Dodd needed the money. Unruh was given no justification whatsoever.

The California speaker is not just an ordinary state official. Not only is he the leader of the legislature in the most populous state in the union, but he is a power in Democratic politics, nurses an ambition to be governor.

THE MONEY MYSTERY

Unruh comes from a very safe Democratic district, the Los Angeles suburb of Inglewood, where he is a cinch to be re-elected. He hardly needs to spend a thousand dollars on a few handbills to remain in the California legislature.

Yet on April 8, 1964, he held a huge $100-a-plate testimonial dinner in the International Hotel's ballroom which was reported to have brought in $200,000; while on January 13 of this year he held another in the Hollywood Palladium attended by 2,100 people at $100 a plate.

After this column began focusing attention on Sen. Dodd's dinners, the California Press, on April 26, got hold of the speaker and asked him what he was going to do with the $200,000 raised at the last dinner.

"Spend it," was Unruh's flippant reply.

"How?" pressed Martin Salditch of the Riverside Press.

"That's my business," said Unruh arrogantly.

When he was asked whether he would spend part of the money helping other legislative candidates, Unruh was evasive.

"You'll have to check their campaign expense reports," he parried.

When he was reminded that his name had not appeared as a contributor to favored legislators in previous elections, Unruh was equally arrogant. "You'll just have to speculate," he said.

Since Unruh invites speculation, the press is justified in noting that he has moved in recent years from a small one-family house on Ninth Avenue to quite a beautiful home, worth between $75,000 and $100,000, on 8315 Byrd Ave., in Inglewood. His assembly salary is $500 a month.

His friend Mayor Sam Yorty also moved from a small, pre-mayor home in the San Fernando Valley to a mansion on Blairwood Drive in Studio City.

PARADE OF ADVERTISERS

Examination of the record shows that Speaker Unruh did not spend much of his own re-election campaigns. In 1964 he listed receipts of only $7,627.43, the year in which a testimonial dinner brought in around $200,000.

The 1966 listing of campaign contributors is not complete, but looking through Unruh's ornate program for his January 13 dinner it is easy to identify his best backers.

The program, thick with ads, features a handsome photo of the guest of honor, with the caption: "Jesse Unruh is a family man, a politician and a leader and tonight we honor him as a friend."

Those who bought full-page or half-page ads in the program included the Western Harness Racing Association and the Horsemen's Benevolent and Protective Association. In the earlier 1964 dinner program, the California harness racing industry was a big advertiser.

Unruh has been a consistent backer of more night harness racing and has done his best to push pro - racing bills through the legislature. Each time Gov. Brown has vigorously opposed him and beat him.

Another full-page advertiser in the 1966 program was Dom Tavaglione. He was asked by Gov. Brown to resign from the State Alcohol Control board after he had arranged for it to meet in a bowling alley.

Another big advertiser for the 1966 dinner was the Signal Insurance Company of which Lawrence Harvey is chairman; Louis Warschaw, president; and Homer M. Harvey, vice president. The Harveys are part of the famous aluminum family which is building a smelting plant in the Virgin Islands and which has a contract with the Guinean government for the biggest bauxite deposits in the world -- despite the fact that Guinea is the most pro-Chinese country in Africa.

Brother - in - law Louis Warschaw, who also took a full-page ad in Unruh's 1964 dinner program, is the husband of Carmen Harvey Warschaw, Democratic state chairman for Southern California.

Other advertisers were the Great Western Savings, World Savings, and Bart Lytton, a big savings and loan banker who inscribed his ad thus: "To Jesse Unruh, my kind of progressive, stand-up, intellectually honest public servant."

As speaker of the California assembly, Unruh killed the clean election bill so that today no one has any real power to investigate what he did with the $400,000 raised from his testimonial dinners.

REACTION TO BOBBY K

WASHINGTON -- Sen. Bobby Kennedy's recent statement on Pan American relations and the Alliance for Progress was generally welcomed in Latin America, but he made on mistake.

This was his reference to U. S. recognition of revolutionary governments. What the brother of the late President meant to do was discourage military revolts and government by military juntas. However, this was interpreted in many quarters, especially Mexico, as an attempt by the colossus of the north to dictate the types of government which should run Latin America.

The reaction in Mexico was so explosive that it brought an almost unprecedented agreement between the PRI (Party of Revolutionary Institutions) and the PAN (National Action Party). PRI presidential candidates have won every election since the party was formed more than 40 years ago. The Rightwing PAN is that country's chief opposition group.

Usually, deputies and senators representing the two parties in Mexico's congress are in total conflict on every issue. But when Bobby Kennedy's views were made public, rivalry went by the board. Both factions bristled.

PRI Deputy Manuel Origel Salazar took the floor in the chamber to declare: "Mr. Kennedy does not know what he is talking about when he refers to Mexico.

"We agree that there may be a lot of shortcomings in Central and South America, but not in Mexico, where important goals have been achieved in raising the standard of living among the rural population.

"We also agree that there are still some problems here and that we must do our best from day to day to remedy them, but we will do so without political guidance from anyone."

Heartily seconding his political opponent's outlook, PAN Deputy Federico Estrada said that "if Senator Kennedy could get the United States to pay fair prices for raw materials brought from Latin America, this would bring immediate prosperity to the area."

Pentagon and State Dept. Fear West Coast Dock Strike Will Cripple Vital New Bases in Viet Nam.

WASHINGTON, D. C.-- Though unreported "state - side," American construction wizards, despite the odds against them, have been turning Vietnamese sandy beaches into concrete two-freighter piers; stinking swamps into 10,000-foot aluminum mat runways, with parallel taxi strips; and bushland into oil "tankfarms."

Despite heat and malaria and Viet Cong hit-shoot-and-run tactics, whole countrysides have been transformed in 70 to 90 days by a construction combine known as the "RMK" group.

It has moved over $26 million worth of heavy construction equipment into the hell fronts.

And it is imperative to have a steady flow of millions more each month -- virtually all outward bound from U. S. Pacific ports to Viet Nam.

Now there is fear that this steady flow of machinery and supplies will be cut off -- by a union stoppage.

In recent weeks the strike talk has come from 64-year-old Harry Bridges, caliph of the California-based International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union (ILWU).

For a while the authorities, the Navy's Bureau of Yards and Docks which oversees the massive $150 million high-speed Vietnamese building program, and the State Dept. have hoped that Bridges' threats were just so much bargaining talk.

At a series of secret joint conferences in the State Dept. Secretary Dean Rusk's labor specialists were told by their own waterfront contacts that Mr. Bridges and his militant union colleagues were "damned serious."

The advice was to start shifting cargo from West Coast ports to Gulf and Atlantic piers before the ILWU-Pacific Maritime Assn. contract expires at the end of June.

If Bridges blows the whistle, the ships of 65 U. S. and foreign owners will be paralyzed and the 15,000 shoreside men employed by some 50 stevedoring and warehouse companies will stay home.

And what better season is there for a stoppage?

As the information funneled into the office of the always anonymous "Phil" Delaney, Secretary Rusk's labor specialist and coordinator, it became obvious in the past few days that "old Harry" was reverting to his more militant youth in what may be his "final go-round with the owners."

Mr. Bridges will be 65 in July, and another five- or six-year contract will push him past the retirement age. So he is not likely to "go soft."

Mr. Bridges, whose union has strong contacts with militant transport labor organizations across the world, is asking for a bulky package of benefits indeed.

In wages alone, through a complex formula, the bid is for $22.50 a week increase per man for each 40-hour, five-day week.

But that's just the beginning.

There are demands for early retirement, a new vacation schedule, automation payments, and fringes, which lift the hair of the shipowners as they examine and re-examine the union's billet-doux.

This comes atop the old contract which gave the employers the right to automate the docks and handle cargo pretty much as they wanted -- in exchange for paying some $29 million into a special fund.

But now the employers are saying this was a one-shot contract. So both sides are holding steady.

What worries the Defense and State Departments is the impact of the stoppage on the vital, ultra-high speed construction in such areas as the tortured Da Nang sector -- as well as in eight other vital areas of Viet Nam.

The RMK combine -- Raymond Morris Knudsen-Brown Root Jones -- now is spending about $20 million a month. The latest figures the classified boys will release here put the Vietnamese employes of the RMK drive at 40,000 men. They are being hired at the rate of 1,000 a week.

They've been doing Trojan work: In Da Nang alone they have built or are working on a 10,000 foot concrete and asphalt runway, a tank farm with an offshore unloading fuel line, perimeter security locations, two deep-draft piers and a storage area. Still to be completed are cantonments for military personnel, munition and fuel storage areas and warehouses.

There also is the complex at Da Nang East across the Tourane River. This is the "Marble Mountain Air Facility."

Cam Runh Bay is being developed into a fully equipped major advanced-base-type deepwater port.

A few miles north of the port is the burgeoning Cam Ranh airfield -- and so it goes in Chu Lai, Qui Nhon, Nha Trang, Bien Hoa, Can Tho and Pleiku. Historic and bloody names, those.

But if they are not to get bloodier and tragically historic, the flow of heavy equipment for modern warfare should not cease. That flow calls for at least $8 million worth of material a month and 32,000 tons of shipping and an equivalent amount of cement -- equal to 32 LST loads.

Small wonder fear of a West Coast, Alaska and Hawaiian dock strike haunts the Pentagon and "State."

"FEDERAL MONEY" IS PHONEY MONEY -- BECAUSE THERE IS NO SUCH THING

The Federal government produces nothing to earn money -- it has nothing it does not take from you, who earn it by your production or your savings. Then the government spends your money after first paying the two million "handlers" of your dollars -- the government employees.

But -- you say -- "these big Federal bureaus and their projects are really paid for by the rich." Get out your Income Tax report for last year, compare with what you paid ten years ago, and see who pays. YOU.

Remember that, when somebody promises you something "free -- it's Federal money." It's yours.

The other night a car sponsor ran a TV commercial showing its latest model sitting high in the clouds on a flat, perfectly vertical plateau seemingly miles from anyone or anything. But as the camera zoomed in for a close-up, a pretty girl could be seen behind the wheel.

"I knew it," my husband exclaimed. "Only a woman could get a car up there!"

H. L. Hunt Says

LETTERS DEFEAT COMMUNISM

There was an election to be held in Italy in April 1948. The anti-communist Christian Democrats were in control of the country, but it was thought that the Communist Party would make sensational gains in the Senate and House of Deputies.

Italians living in the U.S. became aroused and began writing letters to their relatives and friends in Italy comparing the personal enterprise system in the U.S. with communism wherever it was the way of life. Many of the letters they wrote may not have reached the Italian voters until just before election day, but they had a profound effect nevertheless. Italy was helped to a victory for freedom by the interest of people in our country who would take time to write a simple letter. Each of their letters which reached the addressee was probably read by 10 or 12 voters. The election unexpectedly turned into a great victory for the Christian Democrat Party, and a stunning defeat for the Communists running for the Italian Legislature.

Our government may make enemies abroad with its foregn aid to other governments, but our citizens in their contact with people abroad have a splendid faculty of making enduring friends.

The June 1 election in the Dominican Republic offers the same challenge. Joaquin Balaguer, a freedomist, is running against a man with a record of flirting with communism. The candidate with communist support in the Dominican election is also receiving help from some sources in the United States.

A strong letter-writing campaign could mean a victory for freedom's cause in the Dominican Republic. Our citizens can write their relatives and friends in Latin America urging the merits of anti-communist Joaquin Balaguer. HLH

Highlights of Assembly Discussed In WSCS Circles

In the majority of circles of the First Methodist church, the subject, "Highlights of Seventh Assembly," was used Wednesday and Thursday.

The Seventh Assembly of the Woman's Society of Christian Service was held May 12 through May 15 in Portland, Ore. "Called to Renewal and Service" was the theme of the assembly. The Rev. Dr. Albert C. Outler, internationally known theologian, made the keynote address, "The Layman's Role in the Ecumenical Movement."

Three outstanding women educatiors discussed "The Educated Woman's Role in the Ecumenical Movement." They were Sister Mary Lile Tobin of the Sisters of Loretto, Dr. Jeane L. Noble, associate professor at New York University and Dr. Eva Shipstone, principal of Isabella Thoburn Methoidist College in Lucknow, India.

Mrs. G. L. McGlothlin of Dexter, president of the Woman's Society of the Poplar Bluff-Sikeston District, was a delegate to the assembly at Portland. Mrs. McGlothlin will be making reports of this assembly to the societies of the district.

In business meetings conducted by the chairman of each circle, pledge cards were given to those who had not made pledges for the coming year. Announcement was made that all members of the Woman's Society of Christian Service would be honored guests at the 10:45 a.m. worship service in the sancturay May 29.

Circle one members enjoyed a coffee and social hour at the church Thursday morning. Mrs. Gene Crenshaw presented the program.

Mrs. W.S. McMullin was hostess at a coffee and social hour for members of Circle two Thursday morning. The Rev. W. A. Spencer, a guest, presented and discussed the subject, "Is God Dead?" Mrs. W. A. Spencer was also a guest.

Circle three members met Thursday morning for a coffee and social hour with Mrs. Clifford LaPlant. Mrs. Dempsey Gardner gave the program. Mrs. E.B. Hutchinson was a guest.

Mrs. Harry Sharp was hotess to Circle four members Thursday afternoon. Mrs. A.J. Renner gave the devotional and Mrs. Helen Jones was program leader. A gift was presented by members to Mrs. E. F. Weidemann in recognition of her leadership as circle chairman for the past year. Mrs. Wiedemann is the newly elected president of the Woman's Society of Christian Service of First Methodist church.

The home of Mrs. J.M. Pitman was the meeting place for members of Circle five. Mrs. Harry Dover, a former member of the Woman's Society and now living in Venice, Fla., was a guest. Mrs. E.R. Putnam, Sr., presented the program.

Mrs. L.M. Standley was hostess to Circle six members Thursday afternoon. Leader of the program topic was Mrs. Lillian Miller. Mrs. W.a. Spencer was a guest. The name of Mrs. Robert Dempster was added to the roll of circle six members. For the past two years Mrs. Dempster has served as president of the W. S. C. S.

Members of Circle seven convened in the home of Mrs. Allen Hubbard Thursday afternoon. Mrs. J.O. Ensor presented the program. Mrs. Joseph Wagner was a guest of this circle.

Wednesday evening at 8 p.m. Mrs. Dan Norton was hostess to members of Circle eight. A pledge and installation service was conducted by Mrs. Carl Joyce.

At 7:30 p.m. Thursday Mrs. John Duckett was hostess to members of Circle nine. Mrs. Don Allen and Mrs. Duckett gave the program and devotional.

Gibson Hurls 5-Hitter

Cardinals

Bob Gibson

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A throwing error gave the St. Louis Cardinals a 4-3 victory Sunday over Cincinnati, ending the Reds winning string at six games.

Kansas City, handcuffed on four hits by Earl Wilson, lost to the Red Sox in Boston, 5-1.

Bob Gibson went the distance for the Cardinals to record his fourth victory against five losses. He allowed only 5-hits. Jim O'Toole took the loss.

Vada Pinson homered to give Cincinnati an early 1-0 lead in the first. The Cards tied it in the fourth and went ahead on Orlando Cepeda's solo blast in the fifth.

The Reds again took the lead in the seventh when Art Shamsky scored on a force out and Leo Cardenas was called safe at home on a low throw from Cepeda to Tim McCarver. The Cardinals manager, Red Schoendienst was ordered to leave the field in a dispute with the Umpire over the call.

St. Louis won it in the ninth on hits by Mike Shannon, Curt Flood, a run scoring single by Cepeda, and two errors.

Kansas City's Ralph Terry and Wilson were hooked up in a 1-1 duel when the Red Sox rallied for three runs on three hits and an error. Boston picked up another run in the eighth on two doubles.

Terry scored the A's only run in the third when he singled, moved to third on Wayne Causey's single and scored on a long out to right center.

St. Louis takes the day off while Kansas City moves to Washington where Jim Hunter will face the Senators Mike McCormick.

In general, large animals have a slower heart rate than small animals. The human heart normally beats 72 times a minute. Large animals, such as elephants and horses, have a heart beat of between 20 to 40 times per minute. In domestic fowl the rate is between 150 and 180 and in smaller birds it sometimes goes above 200 per minute.

Yankees Assemble Five Game Winning Streak

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Two weeks ago when Ralph Houk took over the New York Yankees they were both going to pot.

Now only Houk is.

The new Yankee manager still can't climb into his old uniform but the Yankees have managed to climb into a tie for seventh place by putting together a five-game winning streak capped by Sunday's 5-3 and 2-1 sweep of the Minnesota Twins.

The twin triumphs were the 10th and 11th in 14 games under Houk, who took over the club from Johnny Keane in Los Angeles two weeks ago last Saturday, tried on his old No. 35 uniform and found that sitting behind a desk for two years had caused a pot belly.

He wore No. 51 in Los Angeles -- the uniform belonged to Pete Mikkelsen, who had been traded -- then phoned New York and asked the Yankees to get the No. 35 uniform tailored to his new measurements. Then he started to do a tailoring job on the Yankees.

He immediately designated Joe Pepitone the clean-up hitter, and the first baseman showed why in three runs in the opener and hitting a game-winning double in the eighth inning of the nightcap.

The Yankees still are 8-1/2 games behind the front running Cleveland Indians, who swept a doubleheader from the Chicago White Sox 3-2 and 4-1. Elsewhere, Detroit edged Baltimore 3-2, Boston defeated Kansas City 5-1 and Washington downed California 6-2 before the Angels won the nightcap 2-1.

In the National League, Pittsburgh blanked Los Angeles 4-0, Philadelphia belted Houston 6-1, St. Louis edged Cincinnati 4-3, San Francisco shut out the New York Mets 5-0 before losing the second game 7-2 and the Chicago Cubs beat Atlanta 4-3 after the Braves took the opener 5-2.

The Indians broke a 2-2 tie in the eighth inning of the opener when Max Alvis singled, move up on a grounder and scored on Rocky Colavito's single. Fred Whitfield broke up the nightcap with a two-run double in a three-run seventh inning. John O'Donoghue got the second game victory with a three-hitter and now has four victories in as many games.

Don Wert drove in two of the Tigers' runs with squeeze bunts and the third crossed when pitcher Frank Bertaina threw wild on the second bunt. The Orioles had a chance to tie it in the ninth but Frank Robinson was thrown out at the plate, Willie Horton to Bill Freehan, when he tried to score from second on a single by Brooks Robinson.

The Red Sox were held to one hit by Ralph Terry until they rushed across three runs in the seventh and broke a 1-1 tie. A ground rule double by Dalton Jones, who earlier homered, and Joe Foy's single produced the go-ahead run. Pitcher Earl Wilson also singled in a run, then went on to complete a four-hitter.

The Senators won their fifth straight in the opener with a three-run second inning uprising putting it out of reach. Jim King, Frank Howard and winning pitcher Pete Richert each drove in runs. Jimmy Piersall doubled in Tom Satriano with the decisive run in the fifth inning of the nightcap as the Angels snapped a six-game losing streak.

Kauai King Going For Belmont Stakes

By GEORGE BROWN
Associated Press Sports Writer

BALTIMORE AP - Now comes Kauai King, bidding for the big one that has gotten away so many times.

Tim Tam tried it -- and failed.

Carry Back tried it -- and failed.

Northern Dancer tried it -- and failed.

Now it's Kauai King, with victories in the Kentucky Derby and Preakness, going for the Belmont Stakes -- bidding for sweep of the Triple Crown that has been accomplished only eight times since 1877 and not at all since Citation turned the trick in 1948.

"I was confident before the Preakness," jockey Don Brumfield said, and predicted that the lung-straining 1-1/2 miles of the Belmont will be no trouble for Kauai King, who will be a $5,000 supplemental nominee for the June 4 test at Aqueduct.

Since Citation, Tim Tam, Carry Back and Northern Dancer all swept the first two legs of the gruelling test for 3 year-olds, only to be beaten in the Belmont, the longest of the Triple Crown series. The Derby is 1-1/4 miles, the Preakness 1-3/16.

The list of prospective opponents he has not already beaten is almost nonexistent. Normally, there are at least a couple of trainers who have been bidding their time for the Belmont. None is known at this time.

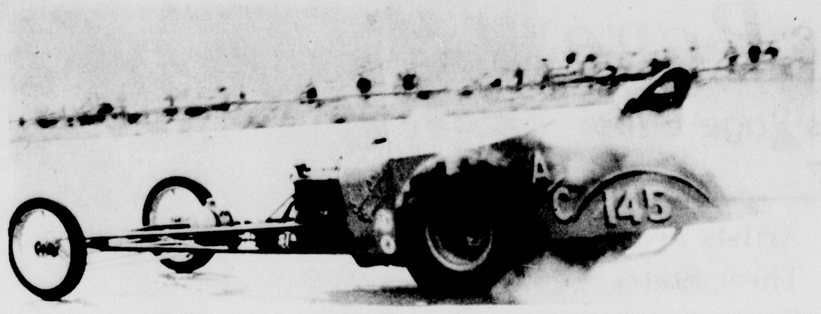

The only possible fresh face to tackle Kauai King that comes to mind is Creme Dela Creme. He won his first six races this year, then lost in the Withers mile to Indulto, who finished a fading fifth in the Preakness.

It was another five lengths back to Amberoid and straggling in order were Rehabilitate, Indulto, Advocator, Exceedingly, Understanding and Blue Skyer.

It was the eighth victory in 10 starts this year for Kauai King and hiked his earnings for owner Mike Ford to $369,027.

The time was 1:55 2/5.

KC Central Captures Class L Meet, Cape Finishes Fourth

COLUMBIA, Mo. AP-- Kansas City Central repeated as the state Class L high school track champion Saturday, edging St. Louis Beaumont in the final event.

The two were tied going into the mile relay. Central took second place in the race and Beaumont was third.

Central claimed the title with 28 1/2 points. Beaumont had 27 1/2. Kansas City Paseo was third with 16. St. Louis Ladue had 12, Webster Groves 10, Cape Girardeau 10, St. Louis Soldan 9.

Three meet records were broken.

Eight Hundred See Match Race

MALDEN -- Finally the weather man cooperated for drag racing fans at the Malden Drag Strip this week. After more than adequate amounts of rainfall, the weather cleared bright and early this Sunday, enabling the Malden tech men to classify 75 cars before classifications were called for the day.

Marion Fairchild's supercharged 64 Dodge sped past Leonard Hughes injected fuel Plymouth two straight times to win the featured match race. The first run clocked at 9.87 seconds and 148.76 MPH closed in on the stripe record but failed and the second run was clocked at 9.28 seconds at 152.61 MPH.

Competition Eliminator went to Royce Thomasson of Malden in Hartsfield Bros. A-Competition injected Pontiac Dragster which turned 9.98 seconds for better than 140 MPH.

Only one motorcycle was entered in the races.

Eight hundred people enjoyed the afternoon of racing as each race was very exciting. On the first run in the match race Leonard Hughes chute failed to open on his injected Plymouth and he went off the track trhough a fence, and was luckily unhurt.

Torres Easy Winner

By MURRAY ROSE
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK AP -- If heavyweight king Cassuus Clay runs out of opponents in his own division and is still available for boxing, he may find light heavyweight champion Jose Torres knocking on his door.

Torres, easy conqueror of Wayne Thornton in a title defense at Shea Stadium Saturday night, hinted he would like to take on Clay, who stopped Britain's Henry Cooper on cuts in the sixth round in London.

The 30-year-old ruler of the 175-pound class said he watched the telecast of Clay stopping Cooper and declared: "I had more trouble with Thornton than I would have with Clay."

Torres scored two first round knockdowns and soundly drubbed Thornton, the No. 1 contender from Fresno, Calif., in a brawl marred by the challenger's constant fouling.

The handsome, 26-year-old Californian broke every rule in the book, butted a small cut over Torres' right eye in the first round, and kept grabbing the champion's powerful left arm as if it was a loose $100 bill.

Cus D'Amato, former manager of ex-heavyweight champion Floyd Patterson, and now one of Torres' advisors, said he was confident his 5-10, 175-round protege could beat the 6-3, 201-pound Clay.

Torres won the decision over the 174-pound Thornton by a topsided margin. The officials had him ahead by the following round scores: Judges Al Berl and Artie Aidala, 10-4-1 each, and referee Johhny LoBianco, 12-2-1. The AP card nad it 13-2 for Torres.

Thornton, winner of six straight previously, moaned he was hit by a shot in the kidney in the first round "and I never got over it. I thought a kidney punch was illegal here. After that I didn't have any snap. I had no power to stay on him."

The Sikeston high school baseball team members are in the midst of school and are preparing to journey to Lemay Friday to participate in semi-finals of the Missouri state high school baseball tournament.

On their way into the semi-finals, the Dogs had to defeat some fine teams such as Cape Central, North Pemiscot, Oran, and Bloomfield to mention only a few.

The players are scheduled to leave Thursday afternoon and take in a Cardinal game Thursday night and then rest until Friday afternoon when they will meet Ritenour in a semi-final bout.

Jim Ramsey has recovered from his injury and will be ready to enter the game again. Jim did not dress out for the Central game but cheered his fellow teammates on to victory.

Hal Lane, who is the head coach and Kenny Davis, his assistant, have worked hard this season preparing the team and need to be commended on their efforts and coaching in leading the Bulldogs to the State Tournament.

Individual Freedom And The Common Defence

by Walter Millis

It might be found that if the nation revised its estimates of what kind and size of military force was actually required by the conditions of today; if it revised its attitude toward military service to accord more than the real hazards of war; if it then gave to military service the special dignity and recognition of a profession, and put more meaning and reality into the military training, it might be possible to secure from volunteering all the men really required. We could then rely on longer service terms, save the heavy costs of repeatedly training new men to meet the turnover, improve the efficiency of the active forces, and avoid wasting the time and talents of the others. If a reserve were needed, it could be built up from the requisite technicians and specialists withc compelling them to go through long periods of infantry training.

The question is one on which we must doubtless look to the professional soldiers for decisive answers. We may, however, insist that at least they study it with greater imagination and greater earnestness then they have yet given to it. They are not unaware of the problem -- indeed, they cannot escape it, since both the draft and reserve acts terminated in mid-1959, and so must be reviewed. But we cannot expect the military to solve the problem unless the popular mind, also, is freed from old traditions and old military concepts not really applicable to the situation before us.

Good Manners A Must For Men

By DAY BARTLETT

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. AP -- Miss USA said today that good manners for men are a must in her book.

"Men who have bad manners could be called my pet peeve," said Maria Judith Remenyi, who was selected Saturday night.

"I like men to be masculine," Miss Remenyi said. " I hate femininity in men."

Miss Remenyi, a 5-foot-6 brunette was born in Denmark of Hungarian parents and came to this country 10 years ago. She speaks four languages and intends to add a fifth-French-soon.

Miss Remenyi of El Cerrito, Calif., is a junior at the University of California at Berkeley. She represented her home state in a field of 49 beauties from 48 states and the District of Columbia.

A hint of the outcome was given Thursday night when photographers chose Miss Remenyi as "Miss Pixable," indication she also is photogenic.

Runnersup in the 15th annual Miss USA Pageant were Pat Denne, Miss Connecticut; Elaine Richards, Miss Indiana; Judy Ann Slayton, Miss North Dakota, and Randy Beard, Miss Florida.

Miss Remenyi was born in Tversted, Denmark 20 years ago. Her father, Edward A. Remenyi, was stationed there as an officer in the Hungarian army.

Eleven months later the family returned to Hungary. In 1956 the Remenyi family, including Maria and her 5-year-old sister, Elizabeth, fled from Budapest to Austria and then were brought to the United States aboard an Army plane.

"We would have gone to Denmark, but my father's sister, Carmen, had lived in California since 1950 and we decided to join her," Maria said.

The willowy, 118-pound beauty is majoring in physics and hopes to get a doctorate and do research in high-energy physics.

Maria would like to combine marriage and a career and have three or four children. She has shoulder-length hair and measures 35-23-35.

She said she will use the $5,000 prize money to continue her education and take her family to Hawaii.

In July she will return to Miami Beach to compete for the title of Miss Universe, now held by Apsara Hongsakula of Bangkok, Thailand.

KAUAI KING RUNS STUPENDOUS RACE -- Kentucky Derby winner Kuai King, with Don Brumfield in the saddle, followed Stupendous, with Braulio Baeza up, around the track to overcome him in a grueling stretch drive to capture the 91st running of the Preakness, part two of the Triple Crown. Kauai King also captured $119,000 for his owner, Michael J. Ford of Omaha. The Maryland-bred son of Native Dancer paid $4.00, $3.00 and $2.40 and won in the record time of 1:55 2/5.

Viet Nam Policies Go To The Line

By WILLIAM T. PEACOCK

WASHINGTON AP -- The administration's Viet Nam policy goes on the line Tuesday before Oregon Democratic voters choosing their party's nominee for the Senate.

The primary voters will be offered a choice between Howard Morgan, 52, who is critical of President Johnson's Viet Nam policy, and Rep. Robert B. Duncan, 45, who supports it.

As an added fillip, Sen. Wayne Morse, Oregon Democrat who has been sharply critical of the administration, has staked his prestige on a victory for Morgan.

At the same time, Florida and Oklahoma voters will be settling runoff races for nominations for governor, and Kentucky voters will be choosing Senate candidates.

There also will be contests in Oregon for gubernatorial nominations and in both Oregon and Kentucky primary races for Congress will be staged.

Because of the clash of views on Viet Nam policy, national interest is centered on the rival bids by Morgan and Duncan.

Morse has declared that if Morgan was not nominated he would vote for Gov. Mark Hatfield. Hatfield is the prospective Republican Senate nominee although he faces primary opposition from Walter Huss, an ultra-conservative.

State Treasurer Robert Straub is bidding in Oregon for the Democratic nomination for governor. He is opposed by State Sen. Ben Musa. Candidates for the Republican nomination are Secretary of State Tom McCall and John L. Reynolds.

In Florida, Gov. Haydon Burns and Miami Mayor Robert King High are in a runoff for the Democratic nomination for governor. Scott Kelly, who ran third in the first primary May 3, has thrown his support to High.

Oklahoma has runoffs for both the Democratic and Republican nominations for governor. The Democrats: Raymond Gary and Preston Moore, a former American Legion national commander. The Republicans: State Sen. Dewey Bartlett and John N. Happy Camp, a Waukomis banker.

In Kentucky, Sen. John Sherman Cooper is expected to have little trouble winning the Republican nomination for another term. He is opposed in the primary by Sam Ward of Hazard and Thurman Hamlin of London. Candidates for the Democratic nomination are John Young Brown, a Lexington lawyer, and Gaines Wilson, a Louisville businessman. Kentucky does not elect a governor this year.

Johnson Tolerant And Critical

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON AP -President Johnson sounds very tolerant towards his critics, when he's not criticizing them. He can be both tolerant and critical not only in the same week but in the same speech.

This has been going on for years because the critics have irritated him for years.

Just last week he was saying a president "will find people who differ with him, who disagree with him. We all understand that. We accept that."

But also last week he challenged the critics of his Viet Nam policy to stop being "nervous Nellies and some who become frustrated and bothered and break ranks under the strain and turn on their own leaders, their own country and their own fighting men."

It was one of his sharpest attacks on those who don't like the Vietnamese war and say so. Back in 1965, in office less than three months, Johnson combined criticism and tolerance in one speech. This was on Feb. 11, 1964.

"Regardless of what you hear," he said, "and regardless of what some of the bellyachers say, we are a much beloved people throughout the world."

He said, "You will hear alarmists and people who like to jump on their government, people who like to criticize . . . join with some of our opponents and will be almost as much of a problem as some of our other enemies."

Then he became suddenly tolerant: "We have differences. Even in our own country we do not see everything alike. We must make allowances for the other fellow."

Three days later, speaking about U. S. problems at home and abroad, he managed the same kind of combination:

"Freedom prospers through fair discussion of honest differences. Both at home and abroad we welcome such discussion. But neither at home nor abroad is there any need for twisted arguments that would damage the good name of our country. "Those who distort the truth to alarm the people either at home or abroad, about our capacity or our purposes will not fulfill their ambitions."

Two weeks ago one Washington reporter wrote that Johnson had accepted his "critics as a way of presidential life and muffled some of his outbursts. The anger that used to explode when Sen. J. W. Fulbright took the Senate floor with attacks on foreign policy has dissolved into a kind of sadness."

The mind-reading was a little premature. That same week in a speech at Princeton President Johnson took a crack at Fulbright who had complained American foreign policy displayed an "arrogance of power."

Without mentioning Fulbright by name, Johnson said the exercise of power in this century meant for the United States "not arrogance but agony."

The next night at a Democratic dinner Johnson took another poke at Fulbright, chairman of the Senate's Foreign Relations Committee, who was sitting a few seats away.

Johnson said he was glad to be among his old friends and "some members of the Foreign Relations Committee." Some witnesses at Fulbright's committee hearings had not been flattering about Johnson's Viet Nam policies.

And Johnson, still talking, said, "You can say one thing about those hearings although I don't think this is the place to say it."

A MODERN ELECTRONIC ENGINE PERFORMANCE ANALYSIS IS LIKE A DOCTOR'S X-RAY

When you go to your Doctor for a checkup, he usually insists on an X-ray, to determine the exact condition of the vital organs that control body processes.
An electronic diagnosis of your engine and its electrical system is like an X-ray in that it determines the exact condition of each part and component that controls car performance.
Many vital engine parts are out of sight. It is impossible, for example, to see the action of the distributor points under actual working conditions. However, with our modern Rotunda Electronic Diagnosis Equipment, the exact condition of all such hidden parts is clearly indicated on the oscilloscope screen. Nothing is left to guesswork--nothing is overlooked.
Let our trained diagnosis technicians give you a complete report on every phase of your engine's performance. It will pay big dividends in helping you to avoid future trouble.

Contrary to legend, the color red does not excite a bull, since all cattle are color-blind. In bullfighting, the matador's cape and his muleta—his staff which bears a red flag—are red since the color minimizes the sight of blood and other stains, and blends to better advantage to produce a more colorful spectacle. The inside of the cape is yellow and the bulls charge at that as readily as they do the red side.

Two Drown

They were Albert Leroy Chrisman, 16, and Charles E. Briss Jr., 18.

Albert's brother, Tom Chrisman, 18, tried to help them but was pulled under and finally managed to swim ashore.

Gary McMullin, 18, said Briss called for help first. The Chrisman brothers swam to him, then Briss grabbed them and all went down. McMullin said he dived and looked for the missing boys but couldn't find them.

Scuba divers recovered the bodies.

Spotty Spring

Maps show Weather Bureau's estimated forecast of average temperature, precipitation through June 15.

Below normal temperatures should close out spring in the Northeast and Far West while it will be warmer than usual from the northern Great Plains to the Gulf Coast.

Statement Blamed For Light Turnout

WASHINGTON, AP -- Some school officials say the light turnout for the second session of the draft deferment quiz may be a result of draft director Lewis B. Hershey's statement that few collegians actually will be drafted.

About 250,000 students had been expected to take Saturday's examination. Considerably fewer showed up at testing centers in all 50 states, Puerto Rico and the Panama Canal Zone.

At the first session May 14, about 400,000 students took the three - hour, 150 - question test.

But Lt. Gen. Hershey, Selective Service director, told a reporter last week in Dallas, Tex., that few if any college students will be drafted unless the monthly draft quota jumps over 30,000 men.

Hershey said there are enough nonstudents and college dropouts to fill current military needs. Next month's quota was set at 15 000 men and the list has jumped over 30,000 only twice this year, in January and in May.

One official who linked the light turnout to Hershey's speech was James C. Windsor, dean of students at Christopher Newport College, Newport News, Va., where only five of a scheduled 222 took the test.

Windsor said he believed Hershey's statement plus the civil general vagueness concerning the test's effectiveness "has a negative tone on the whole thing."

--There were more testers than testees at Millikin University in Decatur, Ill.

--Only 10 students of the 2,500 registered for the exam appeared at Virginia Tech, although 21 students not registered also appeared.

--At Rochurst College, Kansas City, only 33 of 995 registered showed up; only 890 of an expected 2,100 at the University of Washington took the test; and only 400 of 3,329 appeared at the University of Missouri at Kansas City.

--The turnout was close to expectations at several institutions. Virginia Union University in Richmond had a 100 per cent attendance -- 75 out of 75 -- and 475 of the 556 registered took the tests at the University of Kansas at Lawrence.

There also was a light turnout of demonstrators against the draft and the Viet Nam War. Realtively quiet demonstrations occurred at Southern Methodist University in Dallas, Stanford University in California, Oberlin College in Ohio and St. Vincent's College in Pennsylvania. Two persons were arrested at SMU and charged with unauthorized distribution of printed matter.

The final tests will be given June 3 and 14.

Sex Standards Being Viewed By Presbyterians

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

BOSTON AP --Determination to resist an asserted modern breakdown in sexual standards is voiced in a proposed new creed being considered today by the United Presbyterian Church.

The church must "lead men and women into the full meaning of life together" and offer "the compassion of Christ" to "those caught in the moral confusion of our time," says the new declaration of convictions.

Up for action at the 3.3 million-member denomination's governing General Assembly, it is the first creedal revision for the United Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A. in 317 years. The revision seeks to apply Christ's reconciling message to current issues.

Threatening relationships between nations, between races and between rich and poor are cited, in addition to the section about sex.

"Anarchy in sexual relationships is a symptom of man's alienation from God, his neighbor and himself," the document says.

"Man's perennial confusion about the meaning of sex has been aggravated in our day by the availability of new means for birth control and the treatment of infection, by the pressures of urbanization, by the exploitation of sexual symbols in mass communications and by world overpopulation.

"The Church, as the household of God, is called to lead men out of this alienation into the responsible freedom of the new life in Christ."

A leading British churchman told about 2,200 Christians of various denominations at the gathering Sunday night that the ecumenical movement is newlection "one of the most extraordinary features" of modern religious life-the Pentecostal groups.

The Most Rev. F. Donald Coggan, archbishop of York, told the worhip service the mainline churches, in pressing for unity, generally have shut their eyes to the vitality of the Pentecostals.

Calling this "an unwillingness to face facts," he noted that four out of five Protestants in South America are Pentecostals, and that elsewhere, they are increasing at a faster rate than the historic churches.

"Is it possible that they have gifts of the spirit that we lack?" he asked.

Pentecostals, who emphasize the work of the Holy Spirit, sometimes manifested by "speaking in tongues," number about 6 million in this country. Few are involved in the major ecumenical efforts.

Emmy Awards Sunday

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK AP -- The television industry's highest honors, its Emmy awards, were passed out Sunday night in traditional show business fashion on CBS. It was a better program than last year's but it still lacked the glamor and excitement of the movie's Oscar show.

Because television, unlike motion pictures, is a two-coast business, there were assemblages in both Hollywood and New York and the show bounced back and fourth between them. Danny Kaye and Bill Cosby, West and East Coast masters of ceremonies, kept the jokes short and the recipients on the move.

"The Dick Van Dyke Show," which has concluded its run, and Bob Hope Presents the Chrysler Theater, came off with the lion's share of the awards--four each.

Van Dyke, costar Mary Tyler Moore, the show's writers and the program itself were chosen in various catagories. The Bob Hope show awards were for outstanding directorial achievement, Sidney Pollack for "the Game"; outstanding single performance by an actress in a leading dramatic role, Simone Signoret in "A Small Rebellion"; best actor, Cliff Robertson in "The Game," and for the series as a whole, Bob Hope, executive producer.

"The Fugitive," another well-done and long-running series, was picked as the best dramatic series. Barbara Stanwyck received a tremendous hand when she received her award as outstanding actress in a series, and so did Cosby, a night club comedian turned television hero. Miss Stanwyck stars in "The Big Valley" and Cosby is a costar of "I Spy."

Two awards went to talented persons who died during the season. David Lowe received an award for his fine "KKK--The Invisible Empire," chosen as the season's best documentary in spite of the fact that CBS, the network on which it was broadcast, did not enter shows in its news division. Alice Pearce, who played a supporting role in the comedy series, "Bewitched" was also an award winner.

"Frank Sinatra: A Man and His Music" won in the category for a single musical program. The Bob Hope Christmas show was picked in the category of variety specials.

During the 100 minutes, more than 40 statuettes were distributed or winners introduced. The program, long as it was, went along pretty well, although there was still a lot of fumbling around with envelopes and some superfluous thanksgiving. Generally it was a no-nonsense show.

"Perry Mason" wound up its nine-year run Sunday night. It was not one of the best stories the series has ever had, but it did have some interesting sidelights.

The plot swung around the murder of a nasty television star during a studio fight scene. The backgrounds were largely real spots in the studio where the show was made. Bit parts were played by people routinely connected with the show. Erle Stanley Gardner, who created the lawyer-hero, played a judge with a minimum of lines. Gail Patrick Jackson, the executive producer, was glimpsed sitting at a bar. Jackie Coogan and Dick Clark were prominent in the proce

Q—Where was the first National Wildlife Refuge established in the United States?

A—President Theodore Roosevelt, by executive order, made Pelican Island in Florida's Indian River a National Wildlife Refuge in 1903.

The series has been around for such a long time that the regular members of the cast are like old family friends. I suspect that a lot of us will miss the show when fall rolls around.

Recommended tonight: "The Andy Williams Show," NBC, 8-9, final show of the season with Morey Amsterdam and the Osmund Brothers.

The definition of an educated man, which by implication constituted an objective for all persons, but especially for graduates was given by Dean Vest C. Myers of the Cape Girardeau teachers' college at commencement exercises Monday night. Immediately before commencement was ended superintendent Roy V. Ellise, assisted by W.E. Mahew, announced these awards: Honor graduates--Betty Belle Donnell, presented a scholarship to William Woods College, Fulton; Clay Mitchell, jr., a scholarship to Cape Girardeau Teachers' College; and Esther Duncan, highest ranking commercial student, a scholarship to Draughons' Business College.

The American Legion citizenship medals were awarded to Betty Belle Donnell and Joe Dover. Trophy for the best and most versatile athlete went to Charles Rushing. Women's club medals in applied education to Lucille Hahs in home economics and Floyd Dillender in industrial arts. Music club medals went to Mary Hart in voice and Kenneth Hocker in instrumental achievement. The American History award went to John Webb Bowman. The eighth grade citizenship award went to Mildred Linn.

Mr. Ellise announced these other high school class ranking students; Junior, Gene Struwe, first and Eleanor Harty, second; sophomore, Roger Fisher and Clyde Long, tie; and freshmen, Rose Marie Schorle, Billy Van Arsdale and Berniece Husher, tie.

E.A. Loud of New Madrid, father of Mrs. A. J. Renner, died early Tuesday evening at the Southeast Missouri Hospital in Cape Griardeau, where he was taken May 10 for treatment of diabetes and a carbuncle on his neck.

L.T. Berthe of Charleston was hired Thursday morning as consulting engineer of construction of the city's $205,000 WPA storm sewer.

L.F. Hatfield was taken to the Poplar Bluff hopital for treatment late Tuesday after he had collapsed on a street in Malden, where he was transacting business as a traveling representative of Swift & Company.

High school notes. Homeroom 9C enjoyed a scavenger hunt Friday night beginning at the home economics cottage. The winners, three groups, were given boxes of candy. First prize went to Dick Young, Pat Yeargain, Pat Davis, and Howard Branum. Second prize was awarded to Lawanda Calhoun, Graham Sadler, Joan Pixley, and Doris Ayers. Third prize was clamed by Jack Edwards, Billy Ray Pratt, and Charles Berthe. A live frog, the signature of a druggist and an undertaker, and an inscription on a tombstone were among the objects of the hunt.

Paul Workman, 18-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. B.D. Workman, 1030 North Kingshighway, and Clifford Tittle, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nic Tittle of Smith Addition, were painfully injured in a 1941 Dodge Sedan belonging to young Workman's father was destroyed by fire following an automobile accident on Highway 61 near Kelso Friday night.

Highway 60 between Sikeston and Poplar Bluff has been closed since early Sunday morning on account of over flow water from Black River and prospects were that it would probably not be reopened until sometime Tuesday afternoon. All bus and automobile traffic was discontinued over the highway between Fisk and Poplar Bluff.

A crowd estimated at 4,000 persons attended Memorial services for Sikeston war dead, held Sunday afternoon at the City Cemetery, sponsored by Henry Meldrum Post of the American Legion.

THE PRAYER
For Today From The Upper Room

For this child I prayed; and the Lord hath given me my petition which I asked of him: therefore also I have lent him to the Lord; as long as he liveth he shall be lent to the Lord. (I Samuel 1:27-28)

PRAYER: Dear Lord, channel our thoughts, our actions and our prayers that we may transmit the vision we cherish to others that they may become useful in service to Thee. In Christ's name we pray. Amen.

ANN LANDERS
Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: I married a man who took his sweet time about proposing because he always thought I was too young for him. Now I am 55 and look every day of it, thanks to his rotten temper. Every dirty, mean thing that he has ever said to me has left its mark on my face.

Since you are so good with answers, what's your answer to this?

Yesterday my husband was driving me to the dentist. As I got out of the car he said, "Don't let the dentist sell you his most expensive work, Ethel. Yor're getting up in years and there's no sense putting a fortune into your mouth to lay around in the cemetery."

I was so mad I couldn't speak. What should I have said? -- MRS. MAD

Dear Mrs.: You should have told him you plan to be lying around in that cemetery a long time and you are going to get the most expensive work available because you want it to hold up.

Dear Ann Landers: Our next door neighbor is a nice woman in her 70's.

Last week her brother became ill and she left for the coast very suddenly. She gave the key to her home to a 21-year-old grandson and asked him to keep an eye on her house.

We know for a fact that the boy has been using his grandmother's home for sex purposes. The boy and his girl friend have been to the house four times since Monday. Last night the boy drove up at 10:30 p.m. The girl arrived at 10:45 p.m. in her own car. The girl left at 3:15 a.m. and the boy left at 3:25 a.m.

I am willing to spend the money on a long-distance telephone call if you advise phoning the grandmother. -- CONCERNED

Dear Concerned: I do hope the grandmother returns soon so you folks can get some sleep. The next time you see the boy enter the house, knock on the door and tell him you wanted to make sure it was a relative and not an intruder. He will then know you are hip.

Drop it there. If the woman has asked you to keep an eye on her place, you would be expected to report to her. Since she gave the key to her grandson, she placed -- or I should say, she MISplaced -- her trust in him.

Dear Ann: Recently a man in our office was hospitalized. I'm one of those nincompoops who has more heart than brains. I sent him a large bouquet of flowers out of pure friendship but it was misunderstood.

Since the man returned to work he has been very cool. We are both married and I wonder now if perhaps his wife objected. (My husband didn't. I asked him.)

Should I tell him I'm sorry if the flowers embarrassed him -- or should I skip it? -- DUMB ME

Dear You: It would have been better, of course, if you had sent flowers with a group (cheaper, too).

Anything you say now would sound defensive and raise his eyebrows another inch -- so skip it.

If you have trouble getting along with your parents . . . if you can't get them to let you live your own life, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Bugged By Parents? How To Get More Freedom." Send 50¢ in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Mr. C. L. Blanton
Sikeston Standard
205 South New Madrid
Sikeston, Missouri 63801

Dear Mr. Blanton:

On May 24 we shall be arriving in London, England, to lead a spiritual crusade that will last through July 2. The public meetings will be held at the Earls Court (the largest indoor arena in Britain) and Sembley Stadium (one of the world's largest outdoor stadiums). Hundreds of subsidiary meetings will be held in universities, factories, parks, street corners, nightclubs, churches and many other places by speakers whom I am taking from the United States.

As you know, church attendance in London is down to less than 5 percent and in some areas less than 1 percent. Church leaders, some newspaper editors, and many political leaders are not only concerned but alarmed at the rapidity of the drift to total materialism and secularism in Britain today. On April 2 of this year, Anthony Lejeune wrote an article in the DAILY TELEGRAM entitled "The Marks of Britain's Decadence." His article began: "An intelligent young woman, recently returning to Britain after working in America, told me the other day that seeing this country again with fresh eyes had profoundly shocked her. 'I really think,' she said, 'that Britain has become the most decadent nation in the Western world'." Mr. Lejeune goes on to say that the only unusual thing about this comment was that it came from an English woman. Thus the religious leaders of Britain have invited us to come and lead them in an all - out effort to reach the masses, and help halt the drift away from God and the church.

We are not sure how successful we will be, but it will be the most massive and intensive effort we have ever attempted anywhere in the world. The British television and several of the major newspapers are cooperating. We are hoping to at least start a trend back to the spiritual emphasis that helped make Britian great. At least the crusade can make religion a "talking point"--and that is better than apathy.

This summer, in America we will also face a continuing moral and spiritual crisis. In some areas they are preparing for more race riots, an alarming increase in crime, and more violent demonstrations on Vietnam. It occurred to me that the people would not only be interested in the forthcoming London meetings, but it would be refreshing news in the midst of so much bad news -- and it might have a moral and spiritual impact on this country if they could read about what is happening in London. Therefore, I wonder if you could carry frequent news stories and pictures about the crusade in London.

There are also those who say that the Ten Commandments, The Semon on the Mount, The Apostles' Creed, which I proclaim, are no longer relevant and have lost their appeal. London will be a good test case and should prove of great interest, even to the "God is dead" theologians.

We are deeply grateful for the cooperation that you and your colleagues have given in the past, and I hope that you can help us reach the people of both our countries with God's message this summer.

Most cordially yours,
Billy Graham

Catholic Population Diocese of Springfield-Cape Girardeau

SPRINGFIELD -- Catholics in the United States, Alaska and the Hawaiian Islands now number 46,246,175, according to the recently-released Official Catholic Directory for 1966.

In the Diocese of Springfield-Cape Girardeau, the Catholic population is 36,197, an increase of 244 over last year. The new total represents an 8 year increase of 7,018 over the 29,179 Catholics reported in 1957. The figures were released today by Reverend Leo W. Nugent, Bureau of Information Director for the diocese.

There are now 29 archdioceses and 121 dioceses in the United States. The Diocese of Springfield-Cape Girardeau embraces 39 counties, an area of 25,719 square miles with a total population of 832,047. Most Reverend Ignatius J. Strecker, S. T. D., is Bishop. One new parish increased to 57 the number of parishes in the diocese. A total of 122 priests administer the needs of the faithful. The national total of priests, 59,193, is the largest ever recorded.

In the diocese, there are 969 pupils in 5 high schools and 5,006 in 32 elementary schools. This represents an overall decrease of 212 pupils last year.

The further progress of religious instruction to children under release time, in religious vacation schools, and other classes, is evident in the reports of 4,326 public school children attending religious instruction classes under the auspcies of the Confraternity of Christian Doctrine, a year's increase of 290 pupils.

The upward trend in Catholic college and university enrollments for the third year is reflected by an increase of 28,735 college students or 71% more Catholic college students than 10 years ago.

The total number of American youth, including orphans, seminarians and those in protective institutions, under Catholic instruction is now 10,912,433.

Full-time teachers in the diocese of Springfield-Cape Girardeau Diocese include 27 priests, 155 Sisters, and 73 lay men and women. The full-time teaching staffs of all educational institutions under Catholic auspices in Springfield-Cape Girardeau Diocese total 225.

Those baptized in the Diocese numbered 1,293 -- 940 of them infants and 353 adult converts.

With 2,800 parishioners, Immaculate Conception parish in Springfield, is the largest parish in the Diocese, and St. Agnes Cathedral, Springfield and St. Mary's Cathedral, Cape Girardeau are next with 2,355 and 2,135 parishioners.

Little Floor Action Expected

By WILLIAM F. ARBOGAST

WASHINGTON AP -- Little floor action is expected this week in Congress but its committees will continue to grind away at legislation that may keep senators and House members in Washington until early fall.

Leaders now are hoping for adjournment by October, a month before the congressional elections.

Major committee activity this week centers on the Senate and House Foreign Affairs committees. The Senate committee gets a closed briefing today from State and Defense Department officials. Both committees resume consideration Tuesday of the annual foreign aid bill.

Legislation to regulate traffic in cats and dogs used for experimental purposes will come before the Senate Commerce Committee Tuesday.

Two Senate committees, Judiciary and Government Operations Committee will delve into such matters as drug safety, ability testing of government employes and creation of a department of transportation.

The House Judiciary Committee resumes hearings Tuesday on new civil rights legislation, while the Ways and Means Committee starts hearings today on the administration's request for an increase in the national debt limit.

That measure, slated for a House showdown Wednesday, would increase minimum wage levels from $1.25 to $1.60 over the next two years and add an estimated 7.2 million workers to the program.

The only other general bill on the House schedule would set up a rehabilitation program for narcotics addicts.

The meager Senate docket calls for consideration of the House-passed Treasury and Post Office appropriations bills and House amendments to a Senate bill that would permit the government to shift federal loans to private investors.

At least two factors are contributing to the slow-down of the legislative machinery.

Both Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield and Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of the Senate are hospitalized. Most House members are spending more time in their home districts trying to get renominated and re-elected this year. At one point last week, the House mustered only 258 of its 432 members on a roll-call vote.

Watch Parts

The modern watch contains more than 135 pieces, including the hairspring. In a lady's watch, this hairspring is less than one-third the diameter of a human hair.

Today In U.S. History

Today is Monday, May 23, the 143rd day of 1966. There are 222 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date

In 1868, frontiersman Kit Carson died at Fort Lyon, Colo.

In 1937, the U. S. Supreme Court upheld the constitutionality of the Society Security Act.

Ten years ago -- In a disagreement with French policies in Algeria, former French Premier Mendes--France resigned as minister of state without portfolio.

Five years ago--After one of the biggest proxy fights in corporate history, brothers John and Clint Murchison of Dallas, Tex., formerly took control of the Alleghany Corporation.

One year ago--The O.A.S. Inter - American Armed Force began peace - keeping operations in Santo Domingo.

from ages 18 and over. Prepare now for U.S. Civil Service job openings during the next 12 months.

Government positions pay high starting salaries. They provide much greater security than private employment and excellent opportunity for advancement. Many positions require little or no specialized education or experience.

But to get one of these jobs, you must pass a test. The competition is keen and in some cases only one out of five pass.

Lincoln Service has helped thousands prepare for these tests every year since 1948. It is one of the largest and oldest privately owned schools of its kind and is not connected with the Government.

WASHINGTON D.C.--- More than 63 per cent of Missouri's Interstate and Defense Highways are now open to traffic, Director of the Bureau of Public Roads Rex Whitton said today.

This is 10 per cent higher then the average for the nation, he said in the first quarterly report this year. The state has been allotted 1,119 miles of the highways, out of a total of 41,000. Only 13 miles remain for planning or engineering.

Director Whitton disclosed that 83 miles are now under construction, and 314 more miles are on the drawing board for construction, or for the acquisition of right of way. Cost of the work now in progress comes to $241 millions of which 90 per cent is paid by the federal government, and 10 per cent by the state.

Since 1956 when the Interstate and defense system was approved by Congress, $467.7 million has been spent for the Interstate and Defense system of highways in Missouri, under the 90-10 percent formula.

ABC Roads

The Director also disclosed that 266 miles of the primary, secondary, and urban roads (the ABC system) are under construction, or are on the drawing board for future construction. Cost of the work in progress is $91 millions which is paid for by state and federal government matching on a 50-50 basis.

State Convention Opens In Sikeston

The Independent Order of Odd Fellows and Rebekahs opened a four-day state wide convention in Sikeston yesterday.

Today's session opened with a breakfast party at the Holiday Inn, honoring Lady Myrtle Hammond, auxiliary president Patriarchs Militant. At 8:30 a.m. they assembled at the I.O.O.F. Hall with greeting committees of all groups.

At 1 p.m. the department council and installation officers. At 4 p.m. was an assembly for the past president of the Rebekah Lodge, and at 6 p.m. decoration of Chivalry, at the American Legion Hall.

At 8:15 p.m. tonight will be open Grand Lodge ceremonies at the Legion Hall, as well as Rebekah Assembly.

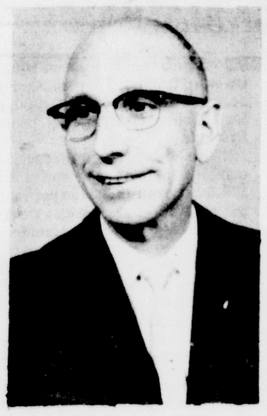

On Tuesday morning at 7 a.m. will be a breakfast for past presidents of Rebekah Lodge, honoring Vice-President Jewell Shell acting president.

At 8:30 a.m. will be the conferring of degrees of Grand Lodge and at 9 a.m. degrees for Rebekah Assembly.

The afternoon session will find both lodges in regular session until 3 p.m. when there will be a memorial service.

At 7 p.m. will be the annual banquet with grand master Eugene Cole, Farmington as master of ceremonies at the Holiday Inn.

Airplane rides were given to guests, who had to pay a penney per pound for a ride. Jim Musick, manager of the Chamber of Commerce, said that over 42,000 pounds of people were given rides.

The skydivers average making 15 to 20 jumps per month in their performances that covers a tri-state area of Arkansas, Missouri and Tennessee.

The team is made up by Paul Ferguson, Don Ayers, Bob Thomas, Bert Alderson, and Larry Spence. Ferguson is captain of the team. They make there jumps from a Stinson V-77, which is piloted by Bill Nolan.

Milford Estes won the bombing contest. He came within a range of 42 feet of the target.

There were 26 planes on exhibit, including planes made by the Mooney Manufacturing Company, Cessana Manufacturing Company, Beech Manufacturing Company. There were private planes from Cape Girardeau, St. Louis, Jonesboro, Malden and Sikeston.

Two Benton Breakins

BENTON - Two service stations were broken into here early this morning according to Scott county sheriff, John Dennis.

Two cash registers, valued at $270 each, were taken from Urhahns and Stuckey's service stations.

Entry was made into the Stuckey station through a window. Taken, in addition to the register, were 21 cartons of cigarettes, $110 in cash, four boxes of cigars and candy and gum.

Dennis said the burglaries were committed between one and six a.m. this morning.

Franchising, which includes businesses ranging from art galleries to water softener services, is a $60 billion industry in the U. S. today.

There are over 2,000 different varieties of plastic flowers available today, compared with some 100 paper flower styles made before plastic blooms were introduced in the U. S. in 1958.

Two Thousand Dollar Robbery

GIDEON -- Two armed men robbed Gilbert H. Wilkerson and wife here late Saturday night of $1,200 in cash and a diamond ring valued at $800.

Willis Wingo, Gideon Chief of Police reported that one gunmen stuck a shotgun through a window where the Wilkersons were watching television, while the other gunmen jumped through a glass window with a small revolver.

The gunmen tied Mrs. Wilkerson up and left her in a hall way while they escorted her husband to a safe which was located in a back room.

The men wore nylon socks over their heads and were thought to have been drinking heavily. They were described as about middle aged and weighed about 190 pounds.

Wilkerson is owner and operator of a liquor store and bar in Gideon.

Two suspects were picked up early Sunday morning, but were released Sunday after taking a lie-detector test at Poplar Bluff.

Holobar Faces Kentucky Court

PADUCAH, Ky. -- Chester "Chet" Holobar, 30, Sikeston, faces court action today as he faces the County Court here at three p.m. stemming from a charge of defrauding an innkeeper of $187.59.

Holober, an employe of the Delta Home Improvement and Investment Company in Sikeston, was scheduled to appear last Monday, but was granted a continuance when his attorney was unable to appear with him.

This Kentucky fraud charge dates back to July 16, 1965 at the Continental Inn. He has been free on $1,000 bond.

Presently he is on one year probation in Scott County, Mo. after being convicted February 8 of writing an insufficient funds check Dec. 14, 1965 payable to cash on the First National Bank in Sikeston for $10. Scott County Magistrate Judge M. E. Montgomery also gave Holobar a 30 day suspended jail sentence after conviction.

Another employe of the Delta Home Improvement and Investment Company, Willie Doll, alias David Wingate, has not been apprehended to face a similar charge of defrauding an innkeeper. He is charged with not paying $154.23 to the Continental Inn.

Doll, known as Wingate in the Sikeston area, was convicted of defrauding an innkeeper at Sikeston earlier this year.

It was thought that he was seen in Sikeston Saturday morning and Sunday afternoon.

However, he cannot be extradited to Kentucky because his charge there is not a felony.

Another employe of the Delta Home Improvement and Investment Company, Jim Hale, was freed last week after a charge of obtaining money under false pretense was dismissed by Trial Commissioner Roy Vance.

Hale was charged with obtaining $1,400 from Mrs. Chloe Collie, 65, for putting aluminum siding on her 20 feet by 24 feet house under false pretense.

Andrew Palmer, County Attorney, said that Mrs. Collie is going to file suit against Hale in Civil Court.

I.D. Cards At Sikeston

Application for identification cards, for persons 21 to 25 years old, will be issued for residents of Scott county, at the Sikeston Police Station, Wednesday, June 1, from 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The identification cards will be issued by the Missouri Department of Liquor Control, according to C. Baldwin Young, Cape Girardeau agent.

Issuing of these cards would drastically control the drinking in taverns by minors, and discourage the manufacture and sale of false identification cards. It would also help the legitimate persons engaged in sale of liquor and beer.

Those making application, must have two photos made, sign an application, and send a money order payable to Department of Revenue in amount of $1.50.

The card will be laminated and unable to be altered in any manner.

Huge Amount Of Wire Stolen

A huge amount of copper wire was reported stolen today from the Airport School storage shed over the weekend. It is estimated that the wire was valued close to $750.

Police are investigating.

Minor Injuries On Bootheel Roadways

Minor injuries were reported over the weekend on the Bootheel Roads.

Four teenagers were slightly injured Sunday at 11:45 a.m. in an accident six miles west of Lutesville on highway 34.

A 1962 Volkswagen, driven by Delbert Slinkard, 16, South Roxana, Ill., failed to make a turn, ran off the road and overturned.

Injured were Slinkard, Donna Underwood, 15, Wood River, Ill., with head injuries; Grace Cloninger, 19, Wood River, head and chest injuries; and Vurnis Eunnels, 16, Jackson, head injury.

All injured were taken to the Lutesville Clinic.

In a three - car collision Sunday at 1:15 p.m., eight miles north of Sikeston on highway 61, Barry Becker, 21, was arrested for careless and reckless driving.

A 1964 Volkswagen, driven by James Pemberton, 21, Sikeston, was waiting to make a left turn, when a 1964 Pontiac, driven by Becker, 21, of Sikeston, tried to pass him on the right side, went into a skid and spun around striking a 1966 Comet, driven by J. R. Emerson, 21, Oran. No one was injured in the accident.

In an accident Sunday at 11:30 p.m., four and one-half miles north of Sikeston on a gravel road, a 1965 pickup truck, driven by Jackie James, 22, route two, struck and killed a cow.

Some hen eggs caused an accident Sunday at 9 a.m., four miles north of Sikeston on a gravel road. A 1963 Rambler, driven by Dalton McCoy, 19, Sikeston, had placed some eggs in his car, when some of them fell on the floor of the car.

He reached down to pick them up when he lost control of the car, left the roadway and struck a telephone pole. He was not injured.

Two cars sideswiped Sunday at 2:30 p.m. on highway 62 and Miner, with no one being injured.

The cars were a, 1966 Ford, driven by Galena Poston, 70, Unionville, and a Dodge, driven by James Turk, 23, Sikeston.

In an accident Saturday at 7:45 p.m. on highway 61, three miles north of Sikeston, a 1966 Chevrolet pickup, driven by Billy Casey, 36, East Prairie, sideswiped a 1948 GMC truck, driven by Curtis Jewell, 54, W. Memphis, Ark.

No one was injured. Casey was arrested for driving while intoxicated.

Woodrow Cochran, 33, Bloomfield, driving a 1962 Ford on highway 60, two miles east of Charleston, was arrested for driving while intoxicated, Saturday at 8:30 p.m.

Memphis Trial Begins

MEMPHIS, Tenn., AP -- Joel A. Montgomery, chairman of the board of the First National Bank of Sikeston, Mo., goes on trial here today on an involuntary manslaughter charge in a six and one-half year old traffic fatality.

Jury selection was to begin this morning as state prosecutors readied their case against the 46-year-old wealthy businessman and Mrs. Betty Lou Sells, a pretty divorcee, also charged in connection with the death of Miss lenda Wiles.

The case was widely publicized prior to the ending of Montgomery's four year extradition fight with Memphis authorities. He finally surrendered himself last Feb. 15 when he flew here in his private airplane. He contended he was innocent and that the two-year statute of limitations ran out while he was still a Memphis resident.

At the time of the fatal accident, Montgomery was a local land developer. He moved back to Sikeston, his hometown, before he was indicted in 1962, however.

When the accident occurred, Montgomery, married and the father of three children, was riding in his car with Mrs. Sells and Miss Bobby Vance. Mrs. Sells was driving when the auto collided with the car in which Miss Wiles was a passenger.

Mrs. Sells was tried and convicted of involuntary manslaughter in a 1960 trial, but the decision was reversed by the State Supreme Court. Montgomery's indictment came after the reversal.

1966 looks upon a sad world . . . filled with maniacal international politicians jockeying for power. The effects reach into every home in our land. Emotions are pressured with endless strain. In spite of every march and counter march, picketing and counter picketing, exception groups and small pressure groups never have and never will rule our land. The Spirit of '76 is just as strong in most American hearts today as the feeling was at the birth of our nation 190 years ago come July 4.

We believe a show of flags on national holidays on the homes of every community in our land is an important demonstration. It shows the world that America stands united in love of our country no matter how far apart we appear to be in our opinions.

Decoration Day is May 30.

We believe the flag should fly from every door as a testimonial to our national unity and love of country. Every American should join the host of flag flyers. Get a home flag set now. Fly it on your home on May 30th . . . on Flag Day, July 4 . . . and on all the important national holidays throughout the year. Get a flag. Any flag . . . Old Glory, of course. Get one anywhere and fly it. Make this a must on your list of things to do. Show the children how to raise the colors in the morning and take them down at twilight. This is the American way and should be preserved forever, God willing, as a national tradition.

For those who wish, we offer at cost as a public service a very good, big 3x5 foot flag set complete with flag, 6-foot staff, halyard, mounting bracket and screws, flag etiquette folder and history in a self storage box. You may get your flag by coming to 205 South New Madrid St., Sikeston, or mailing $3.50 for the flag set plus 50¢ for postage to The Daily Sikeston Standard at address here.

THE ROLE OF ADVERTISING IN NEWSPAPERS

It costs a great deal of money to print and publish newspapers. It is necessary to make large investments in machinery, paper and ink; and the salaries and wages of the employees add up to many dollars each day. Some of the money necessary to pay these costs comes from the sale of newspapers to readers. However, by far the largest amount comes from advertisers.

Newspaper advertisers are businessmen with services and products they would like to sell. The question may be asked as to why they are willing to spend money for ads in newspapers. The answer is simple -- it's a good business. It's the best way they have of telling the public about their products or services. Newspaper ads attract and develop their customers. Their advertising is an investment that enables them to keep in business to make a fair profit, and to grow.

In fact, if it were not for advertising, the price of your newspaper would be more than many people could afford. At the same time, the mass distribution made possible by newspaper advertising lowers the cost of the products you buy.

It should be of interest to realize that newspaper ads can generally be divided into four groups:

(1) The national or regional ads. These might be for gasoline; a new brand of lipstick; a breakfast cereal, or a new car. They are usually about products that can be purchased in most stores in your community.

(2) The local or retail ads. These include department store, food and other ads to which the family turns to plan its shopping.

(3) The classified or "want" ads. Here we have an almost endless list of anything or any services that can be bought or sold. Used cars, houses for sale, apartments for rent and job opportunities are all included. With "want" ads, you may also advertise to find a lost wallet, to hunt a new job, to buy or sell a used baby crib, a second-hand t. v. or a bicycle.

(4) Public notice or legal ads. These are ads usually required by law and designed to keep the public informed on meetings, purchasing and other activities of local government units.

WILL THE REAL SENATOR STAND UP?

The Congress has now passed the administration's absurd rent-subsidy program, a plan to subsidize an individual family's rent payments even if the family makes $10,000 a year. But the victory was a close one and might not have been a victory at all had this been anything but a Congressional election year.

The House initially passed the bill by a narrow margin despite the advice and pleas of such level-headed Congressmen as Representative Paul C. Jones, who joined with a vanishing breed in Washington; lawmakers who vote for or against a measure on its merits and with an eye to the ballot box.

When the measure went to the Senate, some forecast it would not enjoy the same success as it had in the House because several Democrats had voiced their opposition.

Our state's senior U. S. Senator, Stuart Symington, was one who doubted the need for such a billion dollar law, particularly in view of a greatly-expanded war in South Viet Nam and because of an expansion of domestic programs.

We'll give you just one guess, however, as to the vote of Missouri's very junior U. S. Senator, Edward V. Long.

Senator Long, as expected, voted for the bill, joining a small brand of ultra-liberals that would undoubtedly vote to give away anything if it meant votes in their home state. There were enough Edward Longs, unfortunately, in the Senate to assure the success of the rent subsidy program.

Apparently only a few Missourians are interested in the voting records of their Congressmen. This is a sad-but-true observation, it seems to us, in view of the absence of criticism of the ultra-liberal voting record of such men as Senator Long.

We can recall the days when Senator Long was a good legislator, one who often voted intelligently on matters affecting the public. He was almost always on the side of fiscal responsibility and budgetary integrity.

That Senator Long was a member of the State Senate.

Will the real Senator Long stand up?

RESPECT FOR COURTS IS A MUST

It would be a great thing for all concerned if our courts could take their case directly to our supreme tribunal -- the American people.

For there is obviously a mounting public dissent from many of the actions and decisions of courts of all levels -- city, county, state, federal, district and supreme.

It isn't too rare to hear such comments as:

"They're making laws instead of ruling on 'em."

"If I was a cop, I'd quit chasing speeders and drunks. Why risk your neck when the traffic courts let 'em go anyway?"

"Justice and common sense have nothing to do with it. It's what's in the fine type that the judges go for."

"Did you see where some 21-year-old kid was in court on a burglary rap and the judge put him away for a year for contempt because the kid kissed his wife in court as they took him to jail? How about THAT?"

No one is saying such comments are valid. But they're being made -- and by more and more people who aren't criminals or in any kind of legal trouble.

The vast majority of our judges are scrupulously fair and highly intelligent, completely sincere and honest and work hard at their jobs. But enough of them have said or done something on the bench to dim public confidence in law and order and thus aid and abet the efforts of a lot of assorted characters who are working hard toward that very goal.

Contempt of court -- even outside the court -- is lethal to government and to society. The foundation of the American system of justice, democracy and fair play is the court -- and too many people are electing to make and obey their own laws, period.

The remedy?

Well, part of it, at least, is for the courts to be ever conscious of their dignity and public image. And for the rest of us to set an example of solid and even militant respect for law and order and for those charged with administering it.

Otherwise, we're heading for real trouble.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

LOS ANGELES -- One of the most dedicated devotees of Doddology in the arena of American politics is Sen. Dodd's fellow Democrat, Speaker Jesse M. Unruh of the California assembly.

Like the senator from Connecticut, the gentleman from California held big fund - raising dinners and has not accounted for the money he collected. Between 1964 and 1966, Unrush held two huge testimonial dinners which grossed around $400,000. Yet no one really knows what he has done with the money.

Unruh is quite brazen about this. "Money," he says, "is the mother's milk of politics."

Sen. Dodd has grossed around $400,000 from half a dozen testimonial functions since 1961 and this column has published the amounts which Dodd placed in his own bank account. Later a Dodd assistant justified this practice on the ground that senate salaries were too low and that Dodd needed the money. Unruh was given no justification whatsoever.

The California speaker is not just an ordinary state official. Not only is he the leader of the legislature in the most populous state in the union, but he is a power in Democratic politics, nurses an ambition to be governor.

THE MONEY MYSTERY

Unruh comes from a very safe Democratic district, the Los Angeles suburb of Inglewood, where he is a cinch to be re-elected. He hardly needs to spend a thousand dollars on a few handbills to remain in the California legislature.

Yet on April 8, 1964, he held a huge $100-a-plate testimonial dinner in the International Hotel's ballroom which was reported to have brought in $200,000; while on January 13 of this year he held another in the Hollywood Palladium attended by 2,100 people at $100 a plate.

After this column began focusing attention on Sen. Dodd's dinners, the California Press, on April 26, got hold of the speaker and asked him what he was going to do with the $200,000 raised at the last dinner.

"Spend it," was Unruh's flippant reply.

"How?" pressed Martin Salditch of the Riverside Press.

"That's my business," said Unruh arrogantly.

When he was asked whether he would spend part of the money helping other legislative candidates, Unruh was evasive.

"You'll have to check their campaign expense reports," he parried.

When he was reminded that his name had not appeared as a contributor to favored legislators in previous elections, Unruh was equally arrogant.

"You'll just have to speculate," he said.

Since Unruh invites speculation, the press is justified in noting that he has moved in recent years from a small one-family house on Ninth Avenue to quite a beautiful home, worth between $75,000 and $100,000, on 8315 Byrd Ave., in Inglewood. His assembly salary is $500 a month.

His friend Mayor Sam Yorty also moved from a small, pre-mayor home in the San Fernando Valley to a mansion on Blairwood Drive in Studio City.

PARADE OF ADVERTISERS

Examination of the record shows that Speaker Unruh did not spend much of his own re-election campaigns. In 1964 he listed receipts of only $7,627.43, the year in which a testimonial dinner brought in around $200,000.

The 1966 listing of campaign contributors is not complete, but looking through Unruh's ornate program for his January 13 dinner it is easy to identify his best backers.

The program, thick with ads, features a handsome photo of the guest of honor, with the caption: "Jesse Unruh is a family man, a politician and a leader and tonight we honor him as a friend."

Those who bought full-page or half-page ads in the program included the Western Harness Racing Association and the Horsemen's Benevolent and Protective Association. In the earlier 1964 dinner program, the California harness racing industry was a big advertiser.

Unruh has been a consistent backer of more night harness racing and has done his best to push pro - racing bills through the legislature. Each time Gov. Brown has vigorously opposed him and beat him.

Another full-page advertiser in the 1966 program was Dom Tavaglione. He was asked by Gov. Brown to resign from the State Alcohol Control board after he had arranged for it to meet in a bowling alley.

Another big advertiser for the 1966 dinner was the Signal Insurance Company of which Lawrence Harvey is chairman; Louis Warschaw, president; and Homer M. Harvey, vice president. The Harveys are part of the famous aluminum family which is building a smelting plant in the Virgin Islands and which has a contract with the Guinean government for the biggest bauxite deposits in the world -- despite the fact that Guinea is the most pro-Chinese country in Africa.

Brother - in - law Louis Warschaw, who also took a full-page ad in Unruh's 1964 dinner program, is the husband of Carmen Harvey Warschaw, Democratic state chairman for Southern California.

Other advertisers were the Great Western Savings, World Savings, and Bart Lytton, a big savings and loan banker who inscribed his ad thus: "To Jesse Unruh, my kind of progressive, stand-up, intellectually honest public servant."

As speaker of the California assembly, Unruh killed the clean election bill so that today no one has any real power to investigate what he did with the $400,000 raised from his testimonial dinners.

REACTION TO BOBBY K

WASHINGTON -- Sen. Bobby Kennedy's recent statement on Pan American relations and the Alliance for Progress was generally welcomed in Latin America, but he made on mistake.

This was his reference to U. S. recognition of revolutionary governments. What the brother of the late President meant to do was discourage military revolts and government by military juntas. However, this was interpreted in many quarters, especially Mexico, as an attempt by the colossus of the north to dictate the types of government which should run Latin America.

The reaction in Mexico was so explosive that it brought an almost unprecedented agreement between the PRI (Party of Revolutionary Institutions) and the PAN (National Action Party). PRI presidential candidates have won every election since the party was formed more than 40 years ago. The Rightwing PAN is that country's chief opposition group.

Usually, deputies and senators representing the two parties in Mexico's congress are in total conflict on every issue. But when Bobby Kennedy's views were made public, rivalry went by the board. Both factions bristled.

PRI Deputy Manuel Origel Salazar took the floor in the chamber to declare: "Mr. Kennedy does not know what he is talking about when he refers to Mexico.

"We agree that there may be a lot of shortcomings in Central and South America, but not in Mexico, where important goals have been achieved in raising the standard of living among the rural population.

"We also agree that there are still some problems here and that we must do our best from day to day to remedy them, but we will do so without political guidance from anyone."

Heartily seconding his political opponent's outlook, PAN Deputy Federico Estrada said that "if Senator Kennedy could get the United States to pay fair prices for raw materials brought from Latin America, this would bring immediate prosperity to the area."

"FEDERAL MONEY" IS PHONEY MONEY -- BECAUSE THERE IS NO SUCH THING

The Federal government produces nothing to earn money -- it has nothing it does not take from you, who earn it by your production or your savings. Then the government spends your money after first paying the two million "handlers" of your dollars -- the government employees.

Remember that, when somebody promises you something "free -- it's Federal money." It's yours.

LETTERS DEFEAT COMMUNISM

There was an election to be held in Italy in April 1948. The anti-communist Christian Democrats were in control of the country, but it was thought that the Communist Party would make sensational gains in the Senate and House of Deputies.

Italians living in the U.S. became aroused and began writing letters to their relatives and friends in Italy comparing the personal enterprise system in the U.S. with communism wherever it was the way of life. Many of the letters they wrote may not have reached the Italian voters until just before election day, but they had a profound effect nevertheless. Italy was helped to a victory for freedom by the interest of people in our country who would take time to write a simple letter. Each of their letters which reached the addressee was probably read by 10 or 12 voters. The election unexpectedly turned into a great victory for the Christian Democrat Party, and a stunning defeat for the Communists running for the Italian Legislature.

Our government may make enemies abroad with its foregn aid to other governments, but our citizens in their contact with people abroad have a splendid faculty of making enduring friends.

The June 1 election in the Dominican Republic offers the same challenge. Joaquin Balaguer, a freedomist, is running against a man with a record of flirting with communism. The candidate with communist support in the Dominican election is also receiving help from some sources in the United States.

A strong letter-writing campaign could mean a victory for freedom's cause in the Dominican Republic. Our citizens can write their relatives and friends in Latin America urging the merits of anti-communist Joaquin Balaguer. HLH

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Pentagon and State Dept. Fear West Coast Dock Strike Will Cripple Vital New Bases in Viet Nam.

WASHINGTON, D. C.-- Though unreported "state - side," American construction wizards, despite the odds against them, have been turning Vietnamese sandy beaches into concrete two-freighter piers; stinking swamps into 10,000-foot aluminum mat runways, with parallel taxi strips; and bushland into oil "tankfarms."

Despite heat and malaria and Viet Cong hit-shoot-and-run tactics, whole countrysides have been transformed in 70 to 90 days by a construction combine known as the "RMK" group.

It has moved over $26 million worth of heavy construction equipment into the hell fronts.

And it is imperative to have a steady flow of millions more each month -- virtually all outward bound from U. S. Pacific ports to Viet Nam.

Now there is fear that this steady flow of machinery and supplies will be cut off -- by a union stoppage.

In recent weeks the strike talk has come from 64-year-old Harry Bridges, caliph of the California-based International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union (ILWU).

For a while the authorities, the Navy's Bureau of Yards and Docks which oversees the massive $150 million high-speed Vietnamese building program, and the State Dept. have hoped that Bridges' threats were just so much bargaining talk.

At a series of secret joint conferences in the State Dept. Secretary Dean Rusk's labor specialists were told by their own waterfront contacts that Mr. Bridges and his militant union colleagues were "damned serious."

The advice was to start shifting cargo from West Coast ports to Gulf and Atlantic piers before the ILWU-Pacific Maritime Assn. contract expires at the end of June.

If Bridges blows the whistle, the ships of 65 U. S. and foreign owners will be paralyzed and the 15,000 shoreside men employed by some 50 stevedoring and warehouse companies will stay home.

And what better season is there for a stoppage?

As the information funneled into the office of the always anonymous "Phil" Delaney, Secretary Rusk's labor specialist and coordinator, it became obvious in the past few days that "old Harry" was reverting to his more militant youth in what may be his "final go-round with the owners."

Mr. Bridges will be 65 in July, and another five- or six-year contract will push him past the retirement age. So he is not likely to "go soft."

Mr. Bridges, whose union has strong contacts with militant transport labor organizations across the world, is asking for a bulky package of benefits indeed.

In wages alone, through a complex formula, the bid is for $22.50 a week increase per man for each 40-hour, five-day week.

But that's just the beginning.

There are demands for early retirement, a new vacation schedule, automation payments, and fringes, which lift the hair of the shipowners as they examine and re-examine the union's billet-doux.

This comes atop the old contract which gave the employers the right to automate the docks and handle cargo pretty much as they wanted -- in exchange for paying some $29 million into a special fund.

But now the employers are saying this was a one-shot contract. So both sides are holding steady.

What worries the Defense and State Departments is the impact of the stoppage on the vital, ultra-high speed construction in such areas as the tortured Da Nang sector -- as well as in eight other vital areas of Viet Nam.

The RMK combine -- Raymond Morris Knudsen-Brown Root Jones -- now is spending about $20 million a month. The latest figures the classified boys will release here put the Vietnamese employes of the RMK drive at 40,000 men. They are being hired at the rate of 1,000 a week.

They've been doing Trojan work: In Da Nang alone they have built or are working on a 10,000 foot concrete and asphalt runway, a tank farm with an offshore unloading fuel line, perimeter security locations, two deep-draft piers and a storage area. Still to be completed are cantonments for military personnel, munition and fuel storage areas and warehouses.

There also is the complex at Da Nang East across the Tourane River. This is the "Marble Mountain Air Facility."

Cam Runh Bay is being developed into a fully equipped major advanced-base-type deepwater port.

A few miles north of the port is the burgeoning Cam Ranh airfield -- and so it goes in Chu Lai, Qui Nhon, Nha Trang, Bien Hoa, Can Tho and Pleiku. Historic and bloody names, those.

But if they are not to get bloodier and tragically historic, the flow of heavy equipment for modern warfare should not cease. That flow calls for at least $8 million worth of material a month and 32,000 tons of shipping and an equivalent amount of cement -- equal to 32 LST loads.

Small wonder fear of a West Coast, Alaska and Hawaiian dock strike haunts the Pentagon and "State."

THE ROLE OF ADVERTISING IN NEWSPAPERS

It costs a great deal of money to print and publish newspapers. It is necessary to make large investments in machinery, paper and ink; and the salaries and wages of the employees add up to many dollars each day. Some of the money necessary to pay these costs comes from the sale of newspapers to readers. However, by far the largest amount comes from advertisers.

Newspaper advertisers are businessmen with services and products they would like to sell. The question may be asked as to why they are willing to spend money for ads in newspapers. The answer is simple -- it's a good business. It's the best way they have of telling the public about their products or services. Newspaper ads attract and develop their customers. Their advertising is an investment that enables them to keep in business to make a fair profit, and to grow.

In fact, if it were not for advertising, the price of your newspaper would be more than many people could afford. At the same time, the mass distribution made possible by newspaper advertising lowers the cost of the products you buy.

It should be of interest to realize that newspaper ads can generally be divided into four groups:

(1) The national or regional ads. These might be for gasoline; a new brand of lipstick; a breakfast cereal, or a new car. They are usually about products that can be purchased in most stores in your community.

(2) The local or retail ads. These include department store, food and other ads to which the family turns to plan its shopping.

(3) The classified or "want" ads. Here we have an almost endless list of anything or any services that can be bought or sold. Used cars, houses for sale, apartments for rent and job opportunities are all included. With "want" ads, you may also advertise to find a lost wallet, to hunt a new job, to buy or sell a used baby crib, a second-hand t. v. or a bicycle.

(4) Public notice or legal ads. These are ads usually required by law and designed to keep the public informed on meetings, purchasing and other activities of local government units.

WILL THE REAL SENATOR STAND UP?

The Congress has now passed the administration's absurd rent-subsidy program, a plan to subsidize an individual family's rent payments even if the family makes $10,000 a year. But the victory was a close one and might not have been a victory at all had this been anything but a Congressional election year.

The House initially passed the bill by a narrow margin despite the advice and pleas of such level-headed Congressmen as Representative Paul C. Jones, who joined with a vanishing breed in Washington; lawmakers who vote for or against a measure on its merits and with an eye to the ballot box.

When the measure went to the Senate, some forecast it would not enjoy the same success as it had in the House because several Democrats had voiced their opposition.

Our state's senior U. S. Senator, Stuart Symington, was one who doubted the need for such a billion dollar law, particularly in view of a greatly-expanded war in South Viet Nam and because of an expansion of domestic programs.

We'll give you just one guess, however, as to the vote of Missouri's very junior U. S. Senator, Edward V. Long.

Senator Long, as expected, voted for the bill, joining a small brand of ultra-liberals that would undoubtedly vote to give away anything if it meant votes in their home state. There were enough Edward Longs, unfortunately, in the Senate to assure the success of the rent subsidy program.

Apparently only a few Missourians are interested in the voting records of their Congressmen. This is a sad-but-true observation, it seems to us, in view of the absence of criticism of the ultra-liberal voting record of such men as Senator Long.

We can recall the days when Senator Long was a good legislator, one who often voted intelligently on matters affecting the public. He was almost always on the side of fiscal responsibility and budgetary integrity.

That Senator Long was a member of the State Senate.

Will the real Senator Long stand up?

Since many consumers judge certain meat products on the basis of color, they are protected against additives which might give a misleading tint to a product. For example, a spice mixture containing paprika extracts is unacceptable by USDA standards in products sucy as a meat patty, because it would give the product a red tint.

RESPECT FOR COURTS IS A MUST

It would be a great thing for all concerned if our courts could take their case directly to our supreme tribunal -- the American people.

For there is obviously a mounting public dissent from many of the actions and decisions of courts of all levels -- city, county, state, federal, district and supreme.

It isn't too rare to hear such comments as:

"They're making laws instead of ruling on 'em."

"If I was a cop, I'd quit chasing speeders and drunks. Why risk your neck when the traffic courts let 'em go anyway?"

"Justice and common sense have nothing to do with it. It's what's in the fine type that the judges go for."

"Did you see where some 21-year-old kid was in court on a burglary rap and the judge put him away for a year for contempt because the kid kissed his wife in court as they took him to jail? How about THAT?"

No one is saying such comments are valid. But they're being made -- and by more and more people who aren't criminals or in any kind of legal trouble.

The vast majority of our judges are scrupulously fair and highly intelligent, completely sincere and honest and work hard at their jobs. But enough of them have said or done something on the bench to dim public confidence in law and order and thus aid and abet the efforts of a lot of assorted characters who are working hard toward that very goal.

Contempt of court -- even outside the court -- is lethal to government and to society. The foundation of the American system of justice, democracy and fair play is the court -- and too many people are electing to make and obey their own laws, period.

The remedy?

Well, part of it, at least, is for the courts to be ever conscious of their dignity and public image. And for the rest of us to set an example of solid and even militant respect for law and order and for those charged with administering it.

Otherwise, we're heading for real trouble.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

LOS ANGELES -- One of the most dedicated devotees of Doddology in the arena of American politics is Sen. Dodd's fellow Democrat, Speaker Jesse M. Unruh of the California assembly.

Like the senator from Connecticut, the gentleman from California held big fund - raising dinners and has not accounted for the money he collected. Between 1964 and 1966, Unrush held two huge testimonial dinners which grossed around $400,000. Yet no one really knows what he has done with the money.

Unruh is quite brazen about this. "Money," he says, "is the mother's milk of politics."

Sen. Dodd has grossed around $400,000 from half a dozen testimonial functions since 1961 and this column has published the amounts which Dodd placed in his own bank account. Later a Dodd assistant justified this practice on the ground that senate salaries were too low and that Dodd needed the money. Unruh was given no justification whatsoever.

The California speaker is not just an ordinary state official. Not only is he the leader of the legislature in the most populous state in the union, but he is a power in Democratic politics, nurses an ambition to be governor.

THE MONEY MYSTERY

Unruh comes from a very safe Democratic district, the Los Angeles suburb of Inglewood, where he is a cinch to be re-elected. He hardly needs to spend a thousand dollars on a few handbills to remain in the California legislature.

Yet on April 8, 1964, he held a huge $100-a-plate testimonial dinner in the International Hotel's ballroom which was reported to have brought in $200,000; while on January 13 of this year he held another in the Hollywood Palladium attended by 2,100 people at $100 a plate.

After this column began focusing attention on Sen. Dodd's dinners, the California Press, on April 26, got hold of the speaker and asked him what he was going to do with the $200,000 raised at the last dinner.

"Spend it," was Unruh's flippant reply.

"That's my business," said Unruh arrogantly.

When he was asked whether he would spend part of the money helping other legislative candidates, Unruh was evasive.

"You'll have to check their campaign expense reports," he parried.

When he was reminded that his name had not appeared as a contributor to favored legislators in previous elections, Unruh was equally arrogant. "You'll just have to speculate," he said.

Since Unruh invites speculation, the press is justified in noting that he has moved in recent years from a small one-family house on Ninth Avenue to quite a beautiful home, worth between $75,000 and $100,000, on 8315 Byrd Ave., in Inglewood. His assembly salary is $500 a month.

His friend Mayor Sam Yorty also moved from a small, pre-mayor home in the San Fernando Valley to a mansion on Blairwood Drive in Studio City.

PARADE OF ADVERTISERS

Examination of the record shows that Speaker Unruh did not spend much of his own re-election campaigns. In 1964 he listed receipts of only $7,627.43, the year in which a testimonial dinner brought in around $200,000.

The 1966 listing of campaign contributors is not complete, but looking through Unruh's ornate program for his January 13 dinner it is easy to identify his best backers.

The program, thick with ads, features a handsome photo of the guest of honor, with the caption: "Jesse Unruh is a family man, a politician and a leader and tonight we honor him as a friend."

Those who bought full-page or half-page ads in the program included the Western Harness Racing Association and the Horsemen's Benevolent and Protective Association. In the earlier 1964 dinner program, the California harness racing industry was a big advertiser.

Unruh has been a consistent backer of more night harness racing and has done his best to push pro - racing bills through the legislature. Each time Gov. Brown has vigorously opposed him and beat him.

Another full-page advertiser in the 1966 program was Dom Tavaglione. He was asked by Gov. Brown to resign from the State Alcohol Control board after he had arranged for it to meet in a bowling alley.

Another big advertiser for the 1966 dinner was the Signal Insurance Company of which Lawrence Harvey is chairman; Louis Warschaw, president; and Homer M. Harvey, vice president. The Harveys are part of the famous aluminum family which is building a smelting plant in the Virgin Islands and which has a contract with the Guinean government for the biggest bauxite deposits in the world -- despite the fact that Guinea is the most pro-Chinese country in Africa.

Brother - in - law Louis Warschaw, who also took a full-page ad in Unruh's 1964 dinner program, is the husband of Carmen Harvey Warschaw, Democratic state chairman for Southern California.

Other advertisers were the Great Western Savings, World Savings, and Bart Lytton, a big savings and loan banker who inscribed his ad thus: "To Jesse Unruh, my kind of progressive, stand-up, intellectually honest public servant."

As speaker of the California assembly, Unruh killed the clean election bill so that today no one has any real power to investigate what he did with the $400,000 raised from his testimonial dinners.

REACTION TO BOBBY K

WASHINGTON -- Sen. Bobby Kennedy's recent statement on Pan American relations and the Alliance for Progress was generally welcomed in Latin America, but he made on mistake.

This was his reference to U. S. recognition of revolutionary governments. What the brother of the late President meant to do was discourage military revolts and government by military juntas. However, this was interpreted in many quarters, especially Mexico, as an attempt by the colossus of the north to dictate the types of government which should run Latin America.

The reaction in Mexico was so explosive that it brought an almost unprecedented agreement between the PRI (Party of Revolutionary Institutions) and the PAN (National Action Party). PRI presidential candidates have won every election since the party was formed more than 40 years ago. The Rightwing PAN is that country's chief opposition group.

Usually, deputies and senators representing the two parties in Mexico's congress are in total conflict on every issue. But when Bobby Kennedy's views were made public, rivalry went by the board. Both factions bristled.

PRI Deputy Manuel Origel Salazar took the floor in the chamber to declare: "Mr. Kennedy does not know what he is talking about when he refers to Mexico.

"We agree that there may be a lot of shortcomings in Central and South America, but not in Mexico, where important goals have been achieved in raising the standard of living among the rural population.

"We also agree that there are still some problems here and that we must do our best from day to day to remedy them, but we will do so without political guidance from anyone."

Heartily seconding his political opponent's outlook, PAN Deputy Federico Estrada said that "if Senator Kennedy could get the United States to pay fair prices for raw materials brought from Latin America, this would bring immediate prosperity to the area."

"FEDERAL MONEY" IS PHONEY MONEY -- BECAUSE THERE IS NO SUCH THING

The Federal government produces nothing to earn money -- it has nothing it does not take from you, who earn it by your production or your savings. Then the government spends your money after first paying the two million "handlers" of your dollars -- the government employees.

But -- you say -- "these big Federal bureaus and their projects are really paid for by the rich." Get out your Income Tax report for last year, compare with what you paid ten years ago, and see who pays. YOU.

Remember that, when somebody promises you something "free -- it's Federal money." It's yours.

H. L. Hunt Says

LETTERS DEFEAT COMMUNISM

There was an election to be held in Italy in April 1948. The anti-communist Christian Democrats were in control of the country, but it was thought that the Communist Party would make sensational gains in the Senate and House of Deputies.

Italians living in the U.S. became aroused and began writing letters to their relatives and friends in Italy comparing the personal enterprise system in the U.S. with communism wherever it was the way of life. Many of the letters they wrote may not have reached the Italian voters until just before election day, but they had a profound effect nevertheless. Italy was helped to a victory for freedom by the interest of people in our country who would take time to write a simple letter. Each of their letters which reached the addressee was probably read by 10 or 12 voters. The election unexpectedly turned into a great victory for the Christian Democrat Party, and a stunning defeat for the Communists running for the Italian Legislature.

Our government may make enemies abroad with its foregn aid to other governments, but our citizens in their contact with people abroad have a splendid faculty of making enduring friends.

The June 1 election in the Dominican Republic offers the same challenge. Joaquin Balaguer, a freedomist, is running against a man with a record of flirting with communism. The candidate with communist support in the Dominican election is also receiving help from some sources in the United States.

A strong letter-writing campaign could mean a victory for freedom's cause in the Dominican Republic. Our citizens can write their relatives and friends in Latin America urging the merits of anti-communist Joaquin Balaguer. HLH

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Pentagon and State Dept. Fear West Coast Dock Strike Will Cripple Vital New Bases in Viet Nam.

WASHINGTON, D. C.-- Though unreported "state - side," American construction wizards, despite the odds against them, have been turning Vietnamese sandy beaches into concrete two-freighter piers; stinking swamps into 10,000-foot aluminum mat runways, with parallel taxi strips; and bushland into oil "tankfarms."

Despite heat and malaria and Viet Cong hit-shoot-and-run tactics, whole countrysides have been transformed in 70 to 90 days by a construction combine known as the "RMK" group.

It has moved over $26 million worth of heavy construction equipment into the hell fronts.

And it is imperative to have a steady flow of millions more each month -- virtually all outward bound from U. S. Pacific ports to Viet Nam.

Now there is fear that this steady flow of machinery and supplies will be cut off -- by a union stoppage.

In recent weeks the strike talk has come from 64-year-old Harry Bridges, caliph of the California-based International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union (ILWU).

For a while the authorities, the Navy's Bureau of Yards and Docks which oversees the massive $150 million high-speed Vietnamese building program, and the State Dept. have hoped that Bridges' threats were just so much bargaining talk.

At a series of secret joint conferences in the State Dept. Secretary Dean Rusk's labor specialists were told by their own waterfront contacts that Mr. Bridges and his militant union colleagues were "damned serious."

The advice was to start shifting cargo from West Coast ports to Gulf and Atlantic piers before the ILWU-Pacific Maritime Assn. contract expires at the end of June.

If Bridges blows the whistle, the ships of 65 U. S. and foreign owners will be paralyzed and the 15,000 shoreside men employed by some 50 stevedoring and warehouse companies will stay home.

And what better season is there for a stoppage?

As the information funneled into the office of the always anonymous "Phil" Delaney, Secretary Rusk's labor specialist and coordinator, it became obvious in the past few days that "old Harry" was reverting to his more militant youth in what may be his "final go-round with the owners."

Mr. Bridges will be 65 in July, and another five- or six-year contract will push him past the retirement age. So he is not likely to "go soft."

Mr. Bridges, whose union has strong contacts with militant transport labor organizations across the world, is asking for a bulky package of benefits indeed.

In wages alone, through a complex formula, the bid is for $22.50 a week increase per man for each 40-hour, five-day week.

But that's just the beginning.

There are demands for early retirement, a new vacation schedule, automation payments, and fringes, which lift the hair of the shipowners as they examine and re-examine the union's billet-doux.

This comes atop the old contract which gave the employers the right to automate the docks and handle cargo pretty much as they wanted -- in exchange for paying some $29 million into a special fund.

But now the employers are saying this was a one-shot contract. So both sides are holding steady.

What worries the Defense and State Departments is the impact of the stoppage on the vital, ultra-high speed construction in such areas as the tortured Da Nang sector -- as well as in eight other vital areas of Viet Nam.

The RMK combine -- Raymond Morris Knudsen-Brown Root Jones -- now is spending about $20 million a month. The latest figures the classified boys will release here put the Vietnamese employes of the RMK drive at 40,000 men. They are being hired at the rate of 1,000 a week.

They've been doing Trojan work: In Da Nang alone they have built or are working on a 10,000 foot concrete and asphalt runway, a tank farm with an offshore unloading fuel line, perimeter security locations, two deep-draft piers and a storage area. Still to be completed are cantonments for military personnel, munition and fuel storage areas and warehouses.

There also is the complex at Da Nang East across the Tourane River. This is the "Marble Mountain Air Facility."

Cam Runh Bay is being developed into a fully equipped major advanced-base-type deepwater port.

A few miles north of the port is the burgeoning Cam Ranh airfield -- and so it goes in Chu Lai, Qui Nhon, Nha Trang, Bien Hoa, Can Tho and Pleiku. Historic and bloody names, those.

But if they are not to get bloodier and tragically historic, the flow of heavy equipment for modern warfare should not cease. That flow calls for at least $8 million worth of material a month and 32,000 tons of shipping and an equivalent amount of cement -- equal to 32 LST loads.

Small wonder fear of a West Coast, Alaska and Hawaiian dock strike haunts the Pentagon and "State."

Highlights of Assembly Discussed In WSCS Circles

In the majority of circles of the First Methodist church, the subject, "Highlights of Seventh Assembly," was used Wednesday and Thursday.

The Seventh Assembly of the Woman's Society of Christian Service was held May 12 through May 15 in Portland, Ore. "Called to Renewal and Service" was the theme of the assembly. The Rev. Dr. Albert C. Outler, internationally known theologian, made the keynote address, "The Layman's Role in the Ecumenical Movement."

Three outstanding women educatiors discussed "The Educated Woman's Role in the Ecumenical Movement." They were Sister Mary Lile Tobin of the Sisters of Loretto, Dr. Jeane L. Noble, associate professor at New York University and Dr. Eva Shipstone, principal of Isabella Thoburn Methoidist College in Lucknow, India.

Mrs. G. L. McGlothlin of Dexter, president of the Woman's Society of the Poplar Bluff-Sikeston District, was a delegate to the assembly at Portland. Mrs. McGlothlin will be making reports of this assembly to the societies of the district.

In business meetings conducted by the chairman of each circle, pledge cards were given to those who had not made pledges for the coming year. Announcement was made that all members of the Woman's Society of Christian Service would be honored guests at the 10:45 a.m. worship service in the sancturay May 29.

Circle one members enjoyed a coffee and social hour at the church Thursday morning. Mrs. Gene Crenshaw presented the program.

Mrs. W.S. McMullin was hostess at a coffee and social hour for members of Circle two Thursday morning. The Rev. W. A. Spencer, a guest, presented and discussed the subject, "Is God Dead?" Mrs. W. A. Spencer was also a guest.

Circle three members met Thursday morning for a coffee and social hour with Mrs. Clifford LaPlant. Mrs. Dempsey Gardner gave the program. Mrs. E.B. Hutchinson was a guest.

Mrs. Harry Sharp was hotess to Circle four members Thursday afternoon. Mrs. A.J. Renner gave the devotional and Mrs. Helen Jones was program leader. A gift was presented by members to Mrs. E. F. Weidemann in recognition of her leadership as circle chairman for the past year. Mrs. Wiedemann is the newly elected president of the Woman's Society of Christian Service of First Methodist church.

The home of Mrs. J.M. Pitman was the meeting place for members of Circle five. Mrs. Harry Dover, a former member of the Woman's Society and now living in Venice, Fla., was a guest. Mrs. E.R. Putnam, Sr., presented the program.

Mrs. L.M. Standley was hostess to Circle six members Thursday afternoon. Leader of the program topic was Mrs. Lillian Miller. Mrs. W.a. Spencer was a guest. The name of Mrs. Robert Dempster was added to the roll of circle six members. For the past two years Mrs. Dempster has served as president of the W. S. C. S.

Members of Circle seven convened in the home of Mrs. Allen Hubbard Thursday affternoon. Mrs. J.O. Ensor presented the program. Mrs. Joseph Wagner was a guest of this circle.

Wednesday evening at 8 p.m. Mrs. Dan Norton was hostess to members of Circle eight. A pledge and installation service was conducted by Mrs. Carl Joyce.

At 7:30 p.m. Thursday Mrs. John Duckett was hostess to members of Circle nine. Mrs. Don Allen and Mrs. Duckett gave the program and devotional.

Highlights of Assembly Discussed In WSCS Circles

In the majority of circles of the First Methodist church, the subject, "Highlights of Seventh Assembly," was used Wednesday and Thursday.

The Seventh Assembly of the Woman's Society of Christian Service was held May 12 through May 15 in Portland, Ore. "Called to Renewal and Service" was the theme of the assembly. The Rev. Dr. Albert C. Outler, internationally known theologian, made the keynote address, "The Layman's Role in the Ecumenical Movement."

Three outstanding women educatiors discussed "The Educated Woman's Role in the Ecumenical Movement." They were Sister Mary Lile Tobin of the Sisters of Loretto, Dr. Jeane L. Noble, associate professor at New York University and Dr. Eva Shipstone, principal of Isabella Thoburn Methodist College in Lucknow, India.

Mrs. G. I. McGlothlin of Dexter, president of the Woman's Society of the Poplar Bluff-Sikeston District, was a delegate to the assembly at Portland. Mrs. McGlothlin will be making reports of this assembly to the societies of the district.

In business meetings conducted by the chairman of each circle, pledge cards were given to those who had not made pledges for the coming year. Announcement was made that all members of the Woman's Society of Christian Service would be honored guests at the 10:45 a.m. worship service in the sancturay May 29.

Circle one members enjoyed a coffee and social hour at the church Thursday morning. Mrs. Gene Crenshaw presented the program.

Mrs. W.S. McMullin was hostess at a coffee and social hour for members of Circle two Thursday morning. The Rev. W. A. Spencer, a guest, presented and discussed the subject, "Is God Dead?" Mrs. W. A. Spencer was also a guest.

Circle three members met Thursday morning for a coffee and social hour with Mrs. Clifford LaPlant. Mrs. Dempsey Gardner gave the program. Mrs. E.B. Hutchinson was a guest.

Mrs. Harry Sharp was hotess to Circle four members Thursday afternoon. Mrs. A.J. Renner gave the devotional and Mrs. Helen Jones was program leader. A gift was presented by members to Mrs. E. F. Weidemann in recognition of her leadership as circle chairman for the past year. Mrs. Wiedemann is the newly elected president of the Woman's Socieity of Christian Service of First Methodist church.

The home of Mrs. J.M. Pitman was the meeting place for members of Circle five. Mrs. Harry Dover, a former member of the Woman's Society and now living in Venice, Fla., was a guest. Mrs. E.R. Putnam, Sr., presented the program.

Mrs. L.M. Standley was hostess to Circle six members Thursday afternoon. Leader of the program topic was Mrs. Lillian Miller. Mrs. W.a. Spencer was a guest. The name of Mrs. Robert Dempster was added to the roll of circle six members. For the past two years Mrs. Dempster has served as president of the W. S. C. S.

Members of Circle seven convened in the home of Mrs. Allen Hubbard Thursday afternoon. Mrs. J.O. Ensor presented the program. Mrs. Joseph Wagner was a guest of this circle.

Wednesday evening at 8 p.m. Mrs. Dan Norton was hostess to members of Circle eight. A pledge and installation service was conducted by Mrs. Carl Joyce.

At 7:30 p.m. Thursday Mrs. John Duckett was hostess to members of Circle nine. Mrs. Don Allen and Mrs. Duckett gave the program and devotional.

Gibson Hurls 5-Hitter

Bob Gibson

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A throwing error gave the St. Louis Cardinals a 4-3 victory Sunday over Cincinnati, ending the Reds winning string at six games.

Bob Gibson went the distance for the Cardinals to record his fourth victory against five losses. He allowed only 5-hits. Jim O'Toole took the loss.

Vada Pinson homered to give Cincinnati an early 1-0 lead in the first. The Cards tied it in the fourth and went ahead on Orlando Cepeda's solo blast in the fifth.

The Reds again took the lead in the seventh when Art Shamsky scored on a force out and Leo Cardenas was called safe at home on a low throw from Cepeda to Tim McCarver. The Cardinals manager, Red Schoendienst was ordered to leave the field in a dispute with the Umpire over the call.

St. Louis won it in the ninth on hits by Mike Shannon, Curt Flood, a run scoring single by Cepeda, and two errors.

Kansas City's Ralph Terry and Wilson were hooked up in a 1-1 duel when the Red Sox rallied for three runs on three hits and an error. Boston picked up another run in the eighth on two doubles.

Terry scored the A's only run in the third when he singled, moved to third on Wayne Causey's single and scored on a long out to right center.

St. Louis takes the day off while Kansas City moves to Washington where Jim Hunter will face the Senators Mike McCormick.

In general, large animals have a slower heart rate than small animals. The human heart normally beats 72 times a minute. Large animals, such as elephants and horses, have a heart beat of between 20 to 40 times per minute. In domestic fowl the rate is between 150 and 180 and in smaller birds it sometimes goes above 200 per minute.

Yankees Assemble Five Game Winning Streak

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Two weeks ago when Ralph Houk took over the New York Yankees they were both going to pot.

Now only Houk is.

The new Yankee manager still can't climb into his old uniform but the Yankees have managed to climb into a tie for seventh place by putting together a five-game winning streak capped by Sunday's 5-3 and 2-1 sweep of the Minnesota Twins.

The twin triumphs were the 10th and 11th in 14 games under Houk, who took over the club from Johnny Keane in Los Angeles two weeks ago last Saturday, tried on his old No. 35 uniform and found that sitting behind a desk for two years had caused a pot belly.

He wore No. 51 in Los Angeles -- the uniform belonged to Pete Mikkelsen, who had been traded -- then phoned New York and asked the Yankees to get the No. 35 uniform tailored to his new measurements. Then he started to do a tailoring job on the Yankees.

He immediately designated Joe Pepitone the clean-up hitter, and the first baseman showed why in three runs in the opener and hitting a game-winning double in the eighth inning of the nightcap.

The Yankees still are 8-1/2 games behind the front running Cleveland Indians, who swept a doubleheader from the Chicago White Sox 3-2 and 4-1. Elsewhere, Detroit edged Baltimore 3-2, Boston defeated Kansas City 5-1 and Washington downed California 6-2 before the Angels won the nightcap 2-1.

In the National League, Pittsburgh blanked Los Angeles 4-0, Philadelphia belted Houston 6-1, St. Louis edged Cincinnati 4-3, San Francisco shut out the New York Mets 5-0 before losing the second game 7-2 and the Chicago Cubs beat Atlanta 4-3 after the Braves took the opener 5-2.

The Indians broke a 2-2 tie in the eighth inning of the opener when Max Alvis singled, move up on a grounder and scored on Rocky Colavito's single. Fred Whitfield broke up the nightcap with a two-run double in a three-run seventh inning. John O'Donoghue got the second game victory with a three-hitter and now has four victories in as many games.

Don Wert drove in two of the Tigers' runs with squeeze bunts and the third crossed when pitcher Frank Bertaina threw wild on the second bunt. The Orioles had a chance to tie it in the ninth but Frank Robinson was thrown out at the plate, Willie Horton to Bill Freehan, when he tried to score from second on a single by Brooks Robinson.

The Red Sox were held to one hit by Ralph Terry until they rushed across three runs in the seventh and broke a 1-1 tie. A ground rule double by Dalton Jones, who earlier homered, and Joe Foy's single produced the go-ahead run. Pitcher Earl Wilson also singled in a run, then went on to complete a four-hitter.

The Senators won their fifth straight in the opener with a three-run second inning uprising putting it out of reach. Jim King, Frank Howard and winning pitcher Pete Richert each drove in runs. Jimmy Piersall doubled in Tom Satriano with the decisive run in the fifth inning of the nightcap as the Angels snapped a six-game losing streak.

Kauai King Going For Belmont Stakes

By GEORGE BROWN
Associated Press Sports Writer

BALTIMORE AP - Now comes Kauai King, bidding for the big one that has gotten away so many times.

Tim Tam tried it -- and failed.

Now it's Kauai King, with victories in the Kentucky Derby and Preakness, going for the Belmont Stakes -- bidding for sweep of the Triple Crown that has been accomplished only eight times since 1877 and not at all since Citation turned the trick in 1948.

"I was confident before the Preakness," jockey Don Brumfield said, and predicted that the lung-straining 1-1/2 miles of the Belmont will be no trouble for Kauai King, who will be a $5,000 supplemental nominee for the June 4 test at Aqueduct.

Since Citation, Tim Tam, Carry Back and Northern Dancer all swept the first two legs of the gruelling test for 3 year-olds, only to be beaten in the Belmont, the longest of the Triple Crown series. The Derby is 1-1/4 miles, the Preakness 1-3/16.

The list of prospective opponents he has not already beaten is almost nonexistent. Normally, there are at least a couple of trainers who have been bidding their time for the Belmont. None is known at this time.

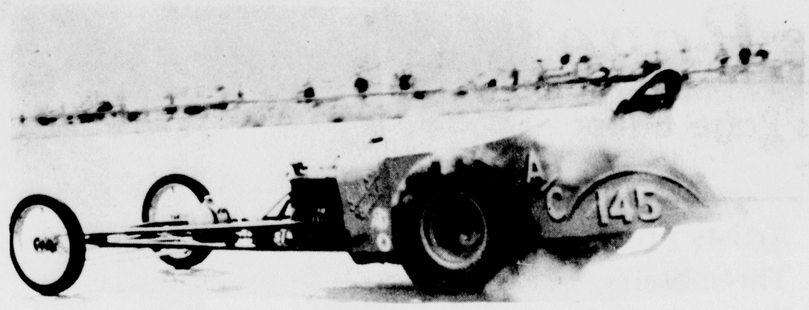

The only possible fresh face to tackle Kauai King that comes to mind is Creme Dela Creme. He won his first six races this year, then lost in the Withers mile to Indulto, who finished a fading fifth in the Preakness.

It was another five lengths back to Amberoid and straggling in order were Rehabilitate, Indulto, Advocator, Exceedingly, Understanding and Blue Skyer.

It was the eighth victory in 10 starts this year for Kauai King and hiked his earnings for owner Mike Ford to $369,027.

KC Central Captures Class L Meet. Cape Finishes Fourth

The two were tied going into the mile relay. Central took second place in the race and Beaumont was third.

Central claimed the title with 28 1/2 points. Beaumont had 27 1/2. Kansas City Paseo was third with 16. St. Louis Ladue had 12, Webster Groves 10, Cape Girardeau 10, St. Louis Soldan 9.

Three meet records were broken.

BATTING -- Hank Aaron, Atlanta, collected six hits in seven at-bats and extended his consecutive hit streak to eight before striking out as Braves split a doubleheader with the Chicago Cubs.

PITCHING -- Juan Marichal, San Francisco, pitched a three-hitter for his eighth victory without a loss and third shutout as the Giants defeated the New York Mets 5-0 in the opener of a doubleheader.

Eight Hundred See Match Race

MALDEN -- Finally the weather man cooperated for drag racing fans at the Malden Drag Strip this week. After more than adequate amounts of rainfall, the weather cleared bright and early this Sunday, enabling the Malden tech men to classify 75 cars before classifications were called for the day.

Marion Fairchild's supercharged 64 Dodge sped past Leonard Hughes injected fuel Plymouth two straight times to win the featured match race. The first run clocked at 9.87 seconds and 148.76 MPH closed in on the stripe record but failed and the second run was clocked at 9.28 seconds at 152.61 MPH.

Competition Eliminator went to Royce Thomasson of Malden in Hartsfield Bros. A-Competition injected Pontiac Dragster which turned 9.98 seconds for better than 140 MPH.

Only one motorcycle was entered in the races.

Eight hundred people enjoyed the afternoon of racing as each race was very exciting. On the first run in the match race Leonard Hughes chute failed to open on his injected Plymouth and he went off the track trhough a fence, and was luckily unhurt.

Torres Easy Winner

By MURRAY ROSE
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK AP -- If heavyweight king Cassuus Clay runs out of opponents in his own division and is still available for boxing, he may find light heavyweight champion Jose Torres knocking on his door.

Torres, easy conqueror of Wayne Thornton in a title defense at Shea Stadium Saturday night, hinted he would like to take on Clay, who stopped Britain's Henry Cooper on cuts in the sixth round in London.

The 30-year-old ruler of the 175-pound class said he watched the telecast of Clay stopping Cooper and declared: "I had more trouble with Thornton than I would have with Clay."

Torres scored two first round knockdowns and soundly drubbed Thornton, the No. 1 contender from Fresno, Calif., in a brawl marred by the challenger's constant fouling.

Cus D'Amato, former manager of ex-heavyweight champion Floyd Patterson, and now one of Torres' advisors, said he was confident his 5-10, 175-round protege could beat the 6-3, 201-pound Clay.

Torres won the decision over the 174-pound Thornton by a topsided margin. The officials had him ahead by the following round scores: Judges Al Berl and Artie Aidala, 10-4-1 each, and referee Johnny LoBianco, 12-2-1. The AP card nad it 13-2 for Torres.

Thornton, winner of six straight previously, moaned he was hit by a shot in the kidney in the first round "and I never got over it. I thought a kidney punch was illegal here. After that I didn't have any snap. I had no power to stay on him."

The Sikeston high school baseball team members are in the midst of school and are preparing to journey to Lemay Friday to participate in semi-finals of the Missouri state high school baseball tournament.

On their way into the semi-finals, the Dogs had to defeat some fine teams such as Cape Central, North Pemiscot, Oran, and Bloomfield to mention only a few.

The players are scheduled to leave Thursday afternoon and take in a Cardinal game Thursday night and then rest until Friday afternoon when they will meet Ritenour in a semi-final bout.

Jim Ramsey has recovered from his injury and will be ready to enter the game again. Jim did not dress out for the Central game but cheered his fellow teammates on to victory.

Hal Lane, who is the head coach and Kenny Davis, his assistant, have worked hard this season preparing the team and need to be commended on their efforts and coaching in leading the Bulldogs to the State Tournament.

Gibson Hurls 5-Hitter

Bob Gibson

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A throwing error gave the St. Louis Cardinals a 4-3 victory Sunday over Cincinnati, ending the Reds winning string at six games.

Kansas City, handcuffed on four hits by Earl Wilson, lost to the Red Sox in Boston, 5-1.

Bob Gibson went the distance for the Cardinals to record his fourth victory against five losses. He allowed only 5-hits. Jim O'Toole took the loss.

Vada Pinson homered to give Cincinnati an early 1-0 lead in the first. The Cards tied it in the fourth and went ahead on Orlando Cepeda's solo blast in the fifth.

The Reds again took the lead in the seventh when Art Shamsky scored on a force out and Leo Cardenas was called safe at home on a low throw from Cepeda to Tim McCarver. The Cardinals manager, Red Schoendienst was ordered to leave the field in a dispute with the Umpire over the call.

St. Louis won it in the ninth on hits by Mike Shannon, Curt Flood, a run scoring single by Cepeda, and two errors.

Kansas City's Ralph Terry and Wilson were hooked up in a 1-1 duel when the Red Sox rallied for three runs on three hits and an error. Boston picked up another run in the eighth on two doubles.

Terry scored the A's only run in the third when he singled, moved to third on Wayne Causey's single and scored on a long out to right center.

St. Louis takes the day off while Kansas City moves to Washington where Jim Hunter will face the Senators Mike McCormick.

In general, large animals have a slower heart rate than small animals. The human heart normally beats 72 times a minute. Large animals, such as elephants and horses, have a heart beat of between 20 to 40 times per minute. In domestic fowl the rate is between 150 and 180 and in smaller birds it sometimes goes above 200 per minute.

Yankees Assemble Five Game Winning Streak

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Two weeks ago when Ralph Houk took over the New York Yankees they were both going to pot.

Now only Houk is.

The new Yankee manager still can't climb into his old uniform but the Yankees have managed to climb into a tie for seventh place by putting together a five-game winning streak capped by Sunday's 5-3 and 2-1 sweep of the Minnesota Twins.

The twin triumphs were the 10th and 11th in 14 games under Houk, who took over the club from Johnny Keane in Los Angeles two weeks ago last Saturday, tried on his old No. 35 uniform and found that sitting behind a desk for two years had caused a pot belly.

He wore No. 51 in Los Angeles -- the uniform belonged to Pete Mikkelsen, who had been traded -- then phoned New York and asked the Yankees to get the No. 35 uniform tailored to his new measurements. Then he started to do a tailoring job on the Yankees.

He immediately designated Joe Pepitone the clean-up hitter, and the first baseman showed why in three runs in the opener and hitting a game-winning double in the eighth inning of the nightcap.

The Yankees still are 8-1/2 games behind the front running Cleveland Indians, who swept a doubleheader from the Chicago White Sox 3-2 and 4-1. Elsewhere, Detroit edged Baltimore 3-2, Boston defeated Kansas City 5-1 and Washington downed California 6-2 before the Angels won the nightcap 2-1.

In the National League, Pittsburgh blanked Los Angeles 4-0, Philadelphia belted Houston 6-1, St. Louis edged Cincinnati 4-3, San Francisco shut out the New York Mets 5-0 before losing the second game 7-2 and the Chicago Cubs beat Atlanta 4-3 after the Braves took the opener 5-2.

The Indians broke a 2-2 tie in the eighth inning of the opener when Max Alvis singled, move up on a grounder and scored on Rocky Colavito's single. Fred Whitfield broke up the nightcap with a two-run double in a three-run seventh inning. John O'Donoghue got the second game victory with a three-hitter and now has four victories in as many games.

Don Wert drove in two of the Tigers' runs with squeeze bunts and the third crossed when pitcher Frank Bertaina threw wild on the second bunt. The Orioles had a chance to tie it in the ninth but Frank Robinson was thrown out at the plate, Willie Horton to Bill Freehan, when he tried to score from second on a single by Brooks Robinson.

The Red Sox were held to one hit by Ralph Terry until they rushed across three runs in the seventh and broke a 1-1 tie. A ground rule double by Dalton Jones, who earlier homered, and Joe Foy's single produced the go-ahead run. Pitcher Earl Wilson also singled in a run, then went on to complete a four-hitter.

The Senators won their fifth straight in the opener with a three-run second inning uprising putting it out of reach. Jim King, Frank Howard and winning pitcher Pete Richert each drove in runs. Jimmy Piersall doubled in Tom Satriano with the decisive run in the fifth inning of the nightcap as the Angels snapped a six-game losing streak.

Individual Freedom And The Common Defence

by Walter Millis

It might be found that if the nation revised its estimates of what kind and size of military force was actually required by the conditions of today; if it revised its attitude toward military service to accord more than the real hazards of war; if it then gave to military service the special dignity and recognition of a profession, and put more meaning and reality into the military training, it might be possible to secure from volunteering all the men really required. We could then rely on longer service terms, save the heavy costs of repeatedly training new men to meet the turnover, improve the efficiency of the active forces, and avoid wasting the time and talents of the others. If a reserve were needed, it could be built up from the requisite technicians and specialists withc compelling them to go through long periods of infantry training.

The question is one on which we must doubtless look to the professional soldiers for decisive answers. We may, however, insist that at least they study it with greater imagination and greater earnestness then they have yet given to it. They are not unaware of the problem -- indeed, they cannot escape it, since both the draft and reserve acts terminated in mid-1959, and so must be reviewed. But we cannot expect the military to solve the problem unless the popular mind, also, is freed from old traditions and old military concepts not really applicable to the situation before us.

By DAY BARTLETT

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. AP -- Miss USA said today that good manners for men are a must in her book.

"Men who have bad manners could be called my pet peeve," said Maria Judith Remenyi, who was selected Saturday night. "I like men to be masculine," Miss Remenyi said. " I hate femininity in men."

Miss Remenyi, a 5-foot-6 brunette was born in Denmark of Hungarian parents and came to this country 10 years ago. She speaks four languages and intends to add a fifth-French-soon.

Miss Remenyi of El Cerrito, Calif., is a junior at the University of California at Berkeley. She represented her home state in a field of 49 beauties from 48 states and the District of Columbia.

A hint of the outcome was given Thursday night when photographers chose Miss Remenyi as "Miss Pixable," indication she also is photogenic.

Runnersup in the 15th annual Miss USA Pageant were Pat Denne, Miss Connecticut; Elaine Richards, Miss Indiana; Judy Ann Slayton, Miss North Dakota, and Randy Beard, Miss Florida.

Miss Remenyi was born in Tversted, Denmark 20 years ago. Her father, Edward A. Remenyi, was stationed there as an officer in the Hungarian army.

Eleven months later the family returned to Hungary. In 1956 the Remenyi family, including Maria and her 5-year-old sister, Elizabeth, fled from Budapest to Austria and then were brought to the United States aboard an Army plane.

"We would have gone to Denmark, but my father's sister, Carmen, had lived in California since 1950 and we decided to join her," Maria said.

The willowy, 118-pound beauty is majoring in physics and hopes to get a doctorate and do research in high-energy physics.

Maria would like to combine marriage and a career and have three or four children. She has shoulder-length hair and measures 35-23-35.

She said she will use the $5,000 prize money to continue her education and take her family to Hawaii.

In July she will return to Miami Beach to compete for the title of Miss Universe, now held by Apsara Hongsakula of Bangkok, Thailand.

Viet Nam Policies Go To The Line

By WILLIAM T. PEACOCK

The primary voters will be offered a choice between Howard Morgan, 52, who is critical of President Johnson's Viet Nam policy, and Rep. Robert B. Duncan, 45, who supports it.

As an added fillip, Sen. Wayne Morse, Oregon Democrat who has been sharply critical of the administration, has staked his prestige on a victory for Morgan.

At the same time, Florida and Oklahoma voters will be settling runoff races for nominations for governor, and Kentucky voters will be choosing Senate candidates.

There also will be contests in Oregon for gubernatorial nominations and in both Oregon and Kentucky primary races for Congress will be staged.

Because of the clash of views on Viet Nam policy, national interest is centered on the rival bids by Morgan and Duncan.

Morse has declared that if Morgan was not nominated he would vote for Gov. Mark Hatfield. Hatfield is the prospective Republican Senate nominee although he faces primary opposition from Walter Huss, an ultra-conservative.

State Treasurer Robert Straub is bidding in Oregon for the Democratic nomination for governor. He is opposed by State Sen. Ben Musa. Candidates for the Republican nomination are Secretary of State Tom McCall and John L. Reynolds.

In Florida, Gov. Haydon Burns and Miami Mayor Robert King High are in a runoff for the Democratic nomination for governor. Scott Kelly, who ran third in the first primary May 3, has thrown his support to High.

Oklahoma has runoffs for both the Democratic and Republican nominations for governor. The Democrats: Raymond Gary and Preston Moore, a former American Legion national commander. The Republicans: State Sen. Dewey Bartlett and John N. Happy Camp, a Waukomis banker.

In Kentucky, Sen. John Sherman Cooper is expected to have little trouble winning the Republican nomination for another term. He is opposed in the primary by Sam Ward of Hazard and Thurman Hamlin of London. Candidates for the Democratic nomination are John Young Brown, a Lexington lawyer, and Gaines Wilson, a Louisville businessman. Kentucky does not elect a governor this year.

Johnson Tolerant And Critical

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON AP -President Johnson sounds very tolerant towards his critics, when he's not criticizing them. He can be both tolerant and critical not only in the same week but in the same speech.

This has been going on for years because the critics have irritated him for years.

Just last week he was saying a president "will find people who differ with him, who disagree with him. We all understand that. We accept that."

But also last week he challenged the critics of his Viet Nam policy to stop being "nervous Nellies and some who become frustrated and bothered and break ranks under the strain and turn on their own leaders, their own country and their own fighting men."

It was one of his sharpest attacks on those who don't like the Vietnamese war and say so. Back in 1965, in office less than three months, Johnson combined criticism and tolerance in one speech. This was on Feb. 11, 1964.

"Regardless of what you hear," he said, "and regardless of what some of the bellyachers say, we are a much beloved people throughout the world."

He said, "You will hear alarmists and people who like to jump on their government, people who like to criticize . . . join with some of our opponents and will be almost as much of a problem as some of our other enemies."

Then he became suddenly tolerant: "We have differences. Even in our own country we do not see everything alike. We must make allowances for the other fellow."

Three days later, speaking about U. S. problems at home and abroad, he managed the same kind of combination:

"Freedom prospers through fair discussion of honest differences. Both at home and abroad we welcome such discussion. But neither at home nor abroad is there any need for twisted arguments that would damage the good name of our country. "Those who distort the truth to alarm the people either at home or abroad, about our capacity or our purposes will not fulfill their ambitions."

Two weeks ago one Washington reporter wrote that Johnson had accepted his "critics as a way of presidential life and muffled some of his outbursts. The anger that used to explode when Sen. J. W. Fulbright took the Senate floor with attacks on foreign policy has dissolved into a kind of sadness."

The mind-reading was a little premature. That same week in a speech at Princeton President Johnson took a crack at Fulbright who had complained American foreign policy displayed an "arrogance of power."

Without mentioning Fulbright by name, Johnson said the exercise of power in this century meant for the United States "not arrogance but agony."

The next night at a Democratic dinner Johnson took another poke at Fulbright, chairman of the Senate's Foreign Relations Committee, who was sitting a few seats away.

Johnson said he was glad to be among his old friends and "some members of the Foreign Relations Committee." Some witnesses at Fulbright's committee hearings had not been flattering about Johnson's Viet Nam policies.

And Johnson, still talking, said, "You can say one thing about those hearings although I don't think this is the place to say it."

Individual Freedom And The Common Defence

by Walter Millis

It might be found that if the nation revised its estimates of what kind and size of military force was actually required by the conditions of today; if it revised its attitude toward military service to accord more than the real hazards of war; if it then gave to military service the special dignity and recognition of a profession, and put more meaning and reality into the military training, it might be possible to secure from volunteering all the men really required. We could then rely on longer service terms, save the heavy costs of repeatedly training new men to meet the turnover, improve the efficiency of the active forces, and avoid wasting the time and talents of the others. If a reserve were needed, it could be built up from the requisite technicians and specialists withc compelling them to go through long periods of infantry training.

The question is one on which we must doubtless look to the professional soldiers for decisive answers. We may, however, insist that at least they study it with greater imagination and greater earnestness then they have yet given to it. They are not unaware of the problem -- indeed, they cannot escape it, since both the draft and reserve acts terminated in mid-1959, and so must be reviewed. But we cannot expect the military to solve the problem unless the popular mind, also, is freed from old traditions and old military concepts not really applicable to the situation before us.

By DAY BARTLETT

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. AP -- Miss USA said today that good manners for men are a must in her book.

"Men who have bad manners could be called my pet peeve," said Maria Judith Remenyi, who was selected Saturday night.

"I like men to be masculine," Miss Remenyi said. " I hate femininity in men."

Miss Remenyi, a 5-foot-6 brunette was born in Denmark of Hungarian parents and came to this country 10 years ago. She speaks four languages and intends to add a fifth-French-soon.

The willowy, 118-pound beauty is majoring in physics and hopes to get a doctorate and do research in high-energy physics.

Maria would like to combine marriage and a career and have three or four children. She has shoulder-length hair and measures 35-23-35.

She said she will use the $5,000 prize money to continue her education and take her family to Hawaii.

In July she will return to Miami Beach to compete for the title of Miss Universe, now held by Apsara Hongsakula of Bangkok, Thailand.

Contrary to legend, the color red does not excite a bull, since all cattle are color-blind. In bullfighting, the matador's cape and his muleta—his staff which bears a red flag—are red since the color minimizes the sight of blood and other stains, and blends to better advantage to produce a more colorful spectacle. The inside of the cape is yellow and the bulls charge at that as readily as they do the red side.

Two Drown

Albert's brother, Tom Chrisman, 18, tried to help them but was pulled under and finally managed to swim ashore.

Gary McMullin, 18, said Briss called for help first. The Chrisman brothers swam to him, then Briss grabbed them and all went down. McMullin said he dived and looked for the missing boys but couldn't find them.

Scuba divers recovered the bodies.

Spotty Spring

Below normal temperatures should close out spring in the Northeast and Far West while it will be warmer than usual from the northern Great Plains to the Gulf Coast.

Statement Blamed For Light Turnout

WASHINGTON, AP -- Some school officials say the light turnout for the second session of the draft deferment quiz may be a result of draft director Lewis B. Hershey's statement that few collegians actually will be drafted.

About 250,000 students had been expected to take Saturday's examination. Considerably fewer showed up at testing centers in all 50 states, Puerto Rico and the Panama Canal Zone.

At the first session May 14, about 400,000 students took the three - hour, 150 - question test.

But Lt. Gen. Hershey, Selective Service director, told a reporter last week in Dallas, Tex., that few if any college students will be drafted unless the monthly draft quota jumps over 30,000 men.

Hershey said there are enough nonstudents and college dropouts to fill current military needs. Next month's quota was set at 15 000 men and the list has jumped over 30,000 only twice this year, in January and in May.

One official who linked the light turnout to Hershey's speech was James C. Windsor, dean of students at Christopher Newport College, Newport News, Va., where only five of a scheduled 222 took the test.

Windsor said he believed Hershey's statement plus the civil general vagueness concerning the test's effectiveness "has a negative tone on the whole thing."

--There were more testers than testees at Millikin University in Decatur, Ill.

--Only 10 students of the 2,500 registered for the exam appeared at Virginia Tech, although 21 students not registered also appeared.

--At Rochurst College, Kansas City, only 33 of 995 registered showed up; only 890 of an expected 2,100 at the University of Washington took the test; and only 400 of 3,329 appeared at the University of Missouri at Kansas City.

--The turnout was close to expectations at several institutions. Virginia Union University in Richmond had a 100 per cent attendance -- 75 out of 75 -- and 475 of the 556 registered took the tests at the University of Kansas at Lawrence.

There also was a light turnout of demonstrators against the draft and the Viet Nam War. Realtively quiet demonstrations occurred at Southern Methodist University in Dallas, Stanford University in California, Oberlin College in Ohio and St. Vincent's College in Pennsylvania. Two persons were arrested at SMU and charged with unauthorized distribution of printed matter.

The final tests will be given June 3 and 14.

Sex Standards Being Viewed By Presbyterians

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

BOSTON AP --Determination to resist an asserted modern breakdown in sexual standards is voiced in a proposed new creed being considered today by the United Presbyterian Church.

The church must "lead men and women into the full meaning of life together" and offer "the compassion of Christ" to "those caught in the moral confusion of our time," says the new declaration of convictions.

Up for action at the 3.3 million-member denomination's governing General Assembly, it is the first creedal revision for the United Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A. in 317 years. The revision seeks to apply Christ's reconciling message to current issues.

Threatening relationships between nations, between races and between rich and poor are cited, in addition to the section about sex.

"Anarchy in sexual relationships is a symptom of man's alienation from God, his neighbor and himself," the document says.

"Man's perennial confusion about the meaning of sex has been aggravated in our day by the availability of new means for birth control and the treatment of infection, by the pressures of urbanization, by the exploitation of sexual symbols in mass communications and by world overpopulation.

"The Church, as the household of God, is called to lead men out of this alienation into the responsible freedom of the new life in Christ."

A leading British churchman told about 2,200 Christians of various denominations at the gathering Sunday night that the ecumenical movement is newlection "one of the most extraordinary features" of modern religious life-the Pentecostal groups.

The Most Rev. F. Donald Coggan, archbishop of York, told the worhip service the mainline churches, in pressing for unity, generally have shut their eyes to the vitality of the Pentecostals.

Calling this "an unwillingness to face facts," he noted that four out of five Protestants in South America are Pentecostals, and that elsewhere, they are increasing at a faster rate than the historic churches.

"Is it possible that they have gifts of the spirit that we lack?" he asked.

Pentecostals, who emphasize the work of the Holy Spirit, sometimes manifested by "speaking in tongues," number about 6 million in this country. Few are involved in the major ecumenical efforts.

NEW YORK AP -- The television industry's highest honors, its Emmy awards, were passed out Sunday night in traditional show business fashion on CBS. It was a better program than last year's but it still lacked the glamor and excitement of the movie's Oscar show.

Because television, unlike motion pictures, is a two-coast business, there were assemblages in both Hollywood and New York and the show bounced back and fourth between them. Danny Kaye and Bill Cosby, West and East Coast masters of ceremonies, kept the jokes short and the recipients on the move.

"The Dick Van Dyke Show," which has concluded its run, and Bob Hope Presents the Chrysler Theater, came off with the lion's share of the awards--four each.

Van Dyke, costar Mary Tyler Moore, the show's writers and the program itself were chosen in various catagories. The Bob Hope show awards were for outstanding directorial achievement, Sidney Pollack for "the Game"; outstanding single performance by an actress in a leading dramatic role, Simone Signoret in "A Small Rebellion"; best actor, Cliff Robertson in "The Game," and for the series as a whole, Bob Hope, executive producer.

"The Fugitive," another well-done and long-running series, was picked as the best dramatic series. Barbara Stanwyck received a tremendous hand when she received her award as outstanding actress in a series, and so did Cosby, a night club comedian turned television hero. Miss Stanwyck stars in "The Big Valley" and Cosby is a costar of "I Spy."

Two awards went to talented persons who died during the season. David Lowe received an award for his fine "KKK--The Invisible Empire," chosen as the season's best documentary in spite of the fact that CBS, the network on which it was broadcast, did not enter shows in its news division. Alice Pearce, who played a supporting role in the comedy series, "Bewitched" was also an award winner.

"Frank Sinatra: A Man and His Music" won in the category for a single musical program. The Bob Hope Christmas show was picked in the category of variety specials.

During the 100 minutes, more than 40 statuettes were distributed or winners introduced. The program, long as it was, went along pretty well, although there was still a lot of fumbling around with envelopes and some superfluous thanksgiving. Generally it was a no-nonsense show.

"Perry Mason" wound up its nine-year run Sunday night. It was not one of the best stories the series has ever had, but it did have some interesting sidelights.

The plot swung around the murder of a nasty television star during a studio fight scene. The backgrounds were largely real spots in the studio where the show was made. Bit parts were played by people routinely connected with the show. Erle Stanley Gardner, who created the lawyer-hero, played a judge with a minimum of lines. Gail Patrick Jackson, the executive producer, was glimpsed sitting at a bar. Jackie Coogan and Dick Clark were prominent in the proce

Q—Where was the first National Wildlife Refuge established in the United States?

A—President Theodore Roosevelt, by executive order, made Pelican Island in Florida's Indian River a National Wildlife Refuge in 1903.

The series has been around for such a long time that the regular members of the cast are like old family friends. I suspect that a lot of us will miss the show when fall rolls around.

Recommended tonight: "The Andy Williams Show," NBC, 8-9, final show of the season with Morey Amsterdam and the Osmund Brothers.

Spotty Spring

Below normal temperatures should close out spring in the Northeast and Far West while it will be warmer than usual from the northern Great Plains to the Gulf Coast.

Statement Blamed For Light Turnout

WASHINGTON, AP -- Some school officials say the light turnout for the second session of the draft deferment quiz may be a result of draft director Lewis B. Hershey's statement that few collegians actually will be drafted.

About 250,000 students had been expected to take Saturday's examination. Considerably fewer showed up at testing centers in all 50 states, Puerto Rico and the Panama Canal Zone.

At the first session May 14, about 400,000 students took the three - hour, 150 - question test.

But Lt. Gen. Hershey, Selective Service director, told a reporter last week in Dallas, Tex., that few if any college students will be drafted unless the monthly draft quota jumps over 30,000 men.

Hershey said there are enough nonstudents and college dropouts to fill current military needs. Next month's quota was set at 15 000 men and the list has ju ed over 30,000 only twice this year, in January and in May.

One official who linked the light turnout to Hershey's speech was James C. Windsor, dean of students at Christopher Newport College, Newport News, Va., where only five of a scheduled 222 took the test.

Windsor said he believed Hershey's statement plus the civil general vagueness concerning the test's effectiveness "has a negative tone on the whole thing."

--There were more testers than testees at Millikin University in Decatur, Ill.

--Only 10 students of the 2,500 registered for the exam appeared at Virginia Tech, although 21 students not registered also appeared.

--At Rochurst College, Kansas City, only 33 of 995 registered showed up; only 890 of an expected 2,100 at the University of Washington took the test; and only 400 of 3,329 appeared at the University of Missouri at Kansas City.

--The turnout was close to expectations at several institutions. Virginia Union University in Richmond had a 100 per cent attendance -- 75 out of 75 -- and 475 of the 556 registered took the tests at the University of Kansas at Lawrence.

There also was a light turnout of demonstrators against the draft and the Viet Nam War. Realtively quiet demonstrations occurred at Southern Methodist University in Dallas, Stanford University in California, Oberlin College in Ohio and St. Vincent's College in Pennsylvania. Two persons were arrested at SMU and charged with unauthorized distribution of printed matter.

The final tests will be given June 3 and 14.

Sex Standards Being Viewed By Presbyterians

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

BOSTON AP --Determination to resist an asserted modern breakdown in sexual standards is voiced in a proposed new creed being considered today by the United Presbyterian Church.

The church must "lead men and women into the full meaning of life together" and offer "the compassion of Christ" to "those caught in the moral confusion of our time," says the new declaration of convictions.

Up for action at the 3.3 million-member denomination's governing General Assembly, it is the first creedal revision for the United Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A. in 317 years. The revision seeks to apply Christ's reconciling message to current issues.

Threatening relationships between nations, between races and between rich and poor are cited, in addition to the section about sex.

"Anarchy in sexual relationships is a symptom of man's alienation from God, his neighbor and himself," the document says.

"Man's perennial confusion about the meaning of sex has been aggravated in our day by the availability of new means for birth control and the treatment of infection, by the pressures of urbanization, by the exploitation of sexual symbols in mass communications and by world overpopulation.

"The Church, as the household of God, is called to lead men out of this alienation into the responsible freedom of the new life in Christ."

A leading British churchman told about 2,200 Christians of various denominations at the gathering Sunday night that the ecumenical movement is newlection "one of the most extraordinary features" of modern religious life-the Pentecostal groups.

The Most Rev. F. Donald Coggan, archbishop of York, told the worhip service the mainline churches, in pressing for unity, generally have shut their eyes to the vitality of the Pentecostals.

Calling this "an unwillingness to face facts," he noted that four out of five Protestants in South America are Pentecostals, and that elsewhere, they are increasing at a faster rate than the historic churches.

"Is it possible that they have gifts of the spirit that we lack?" he asked.

Pentecostals, who emphasize the work of the Holy Spirit, sometimes manifested by "speaking in tongues," number about 6 million in this country. Few are involved in the major ecumenical efforts.

Emmy Awards Sunday

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK AP -- The television industry's highest honors, its Emmy awards, were passed out Sunday night in traditional show business fashion on CBS. It was a better program than last year's but it still lacked the glamor and excitement of the movie's Oscar show.

Because television, unlike motion pictures, is a two-coast business, there were assemblages in both Hollywood and New York and the show bounced back and fourth between them. Danny Kaye and Bill Cosby, West and East Coast masters of ceremonies, kept the jokes short and the recipients on the move.

"The Dick Van Dyke Show," which has concluded its run, and Bob Hope Presents the Chrysler Theater, came off with the lion's share of the awards--four each.

Van Dyke, costar Mary Tyler Moore, the show's writers and the program itself were chosen in various catagories. The Bob Hope show awards were for outstanding directorial achievement, Sidney Pollack for "the Game"; outstanding single performance by an actress in a leading dramatic role, Simone Signoret in "A Small Rebellion"; best actor, Cliff Robertson in "The Game," and for the series as a whole, Bob Hope, executive producer.

"The Fugitive," another well-done and long-running series, was picked as the best dramatic series. Barbara Stanwyck received a tremendous hand when she received her award as outstanding actress in a series, and so did Cosby, a night club comedian turned television hero. Miss Stanwyck stars in "The Big Valley" and Cosby is a costar of "I Spy."

Two awards went to talented persons who died during the season. David Lowe received an award for his fine "KKK--The Invisible Empire," chosen as the season's best documentary in spite of the fact that CBS, the network on which it was broadcast, did not enter shows in its news division. Alice Pearce, who played a supporting role in the comedy series, "Bewitched" was also an award winner.

"Frank Sinatra: A Man and His Music" won in the category for a single musical program. The Bob Hope Christmas show was picked in the category of variety specials.

During the 100 minutes, more than 40 statuettes were distributed or winners introduced. The program, long as it was, went along pretty well, although there was still a lot of fumbling around with envelopes and some superfluous thanksgiving. Generally it was a no-nonsense show.

"Perry Mason" wound up its nine-year run Sunday night. It was not one of the best stories the series has ever had, but it did have some interesting sidelights.

The plot swung around the murder of a nasty television star during a studio fight scene. The backgrounds were largely real spots in the studio where the show was made. Bit parts were played by people routinely connected with the show. Erle Stanley Gardner, who created the lawyer-hero, played a judge with a minimum of lines. Gail Patrick Jackson, the executive producer, was glimpsed sitting at a bar. Jackie Coogan and Dick Clark were prominent in the proce

Q—Where was the first National Wildlife Refuge established in the United States?

A—President Theodore Roosevelt, by executive order, made Pelican Island in Florida's Indian River a National Wildlife Refuge in 1903.

The series has been around for such a long time that the regular members of the cast are like old family friends. I suspect that a lot of us will miss the show when fall rolls around.

Recommended tonight: "The Andy Williams Show," NBC, 8-9, final show of the season with Morey Amsterdam and the Osmund Brothers.

Looking Back Over the Years

50 years ago
May 23, 1916

The Standard and Herald will, in the future, charge $1 for obituary notices, 5 cents per line for cards of thanks and 5 cent per line for all church and lodge notices where money is to be charged, such business understanding has been made necessary by the high cost of all supplies pertaining to the issuing of a newspaper.

The rows of maple trees set out along the rock road north of Sikeston, last fall, stood the winter well and are putting out a rapid growth. This will be one of the handsomest drives in Southeast Missouri in a few years.

Mr. and Mrs. Straud Crain moved to Diehlstadt Thursday. Mr. Crain is agent at the Diehlstadt depot.

Mr. Keasler, who has the contract for putting in the large septic concrete tanks for the sewer system, has all of his machinery on hand and will start at once on the job. One is to be put in near the Sand Pit and the other at the bottom of the hill near the old McMullin farm, west of town.

Mrs. Ira Jones and children left on Tuesday for Galveston, Tex., where they will make their home in the future. Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Fish accompanied them to Poplar Bluff.

The definition of an educated man, which by implication constituted an objective for all persons, but especially for graduates was given by Dean Vest C. Myers of the Cape Girardeau teachers' college at commencement exercises Monday night. Immediately before commencement was ended superintendent Roy V. Ellise, assisted by W.E. Mahew, announced these awards: Honor graduates--Betty Belle Donnell, presented a scholarship to William Woods College, Fulton; Clay Mitchell, jr., a scholarship to Cape Girardeau Teachers' College; and Esther Duncan, highest ranking commercial student, a scholarship to Draughons' Business College.

The American Legion citizenship medals were awarded to Betty Belle Donnell and Joe Dover. Trophy for the best and most versatile athlete went to Charles Rushing. Women's club medals in applied education to Lucille Hahs in home economics and Floyd Dillender in industrial arts. Music club medals went to Mary Hart in voice and Kenneth Hocker in instrumental achievement. The American History award went to John Webb Bowman. The eighth grade citizenship award went to Mildred Linn.

Mr. Ellise announced these other high school class ranking students; Junior, Gene Struwe, first and Eleanor Harty, second; sophomore, Roger Fisher and Clyde Long, tie; and freshmen, Rose Marie Schorle, Billy Van Arsdale and Berniece Husher, tie.

E.A. Loud of New Madrid, father of Mrs. A. J. Renner, died early Tuesday evening at the Southeast Missouri Hospital in Cape Griardeau, where he was taken May 10 for treatment of diabetes and a carbuncle on his neck.

L.F. Hatfield was taken to the Poplar Bluff hopital for treatment late Tuesday after he had collapsed on a street in Malden, where he was transacting business as a traveling representative of Swift & Company.

High school notes. Homeroom 9C enjoyed a scavenger hunt Friday night beginning at the home economics cottage. The winners, three groups, were given boxes of candy. First prize went to Dick Young, Pat Yeargain, Pat Davis, and Howard Branum. Second prize was awarded to Lawanda Calhoun, Graham Sadler, Joan Pixley, and Doris Ayers. Third prize was clamed by Jack Edwards, Billy Ray Pratt, and Charles Berthe. A live frog, the signature of a druggist and an undertaker, and an inscription on a tombstone were among the objects of the hunt.

Paul Workman, 18-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. B.D. Workman, 1030 North Kingshighway, and Clifford Tittle, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nic Tittle of Smith Addition, were painfully injured in a 1941 Dodge Sedan belonging to young Workman's father was destroyed by fire following an automobile accident on Highway 61 near Kelso Friday night.

Highway 60 between Sikeston and Poplar Bluff has been closed since early Sunday morning on account of over flow water from Black River and prospects were that it would probably not be reopened until sometime Tuesday afternoon. All bus and automobile traffic was discontinued over the highway between Fisk and Poplar Bluff.

A crowd estimated at 4,000 persons attended Memorial services for Sikeston war dead, held Sunday afternoon at the City Cemetery, sponsored by Henry Meldrum Post of the American Legion.

THE PRAYER
For Today From The Upper Room

For this child I prayed; and the Lord hath given me my petition which I asked of him; therefore also I have lent him to the Lord; as long as he liveth he shall be lent to the Lord. (I Samuel 1:27-28)

PRAYER: Dear Lord, channel our thoughts, our actions and our prayers that we may transmit the vision we cherish to others that they may become useful in service to Thee. In Christ's name we pray. Amen.

ANN LANDERS
Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: I married a man who took his sweet time about proposing because he always thought I was too young for him. Now I am 55 and look every day of it, thanks to his rotten temper. Every dirty, mean thing that he has ever said to me has left its mark on my face.

Since you are so good with answers, what's your answer to this?

Yesterday my husband was driving me to the dentist. As I got out of the car he said, "Don't let the dentist sell you his most expensive work, Ethel. Yor're getting up in years and there's no sense putting a fortune into your mouth to lay around in the cemetery."

I was so mad I couldn't speak. What should I have said? -- MRS. MAD

Dear Mrs.: You should have told him you plan to be lying around in that cemetery a long time and you are going to get the most expensive work available because you want it to hold up.

Dear Ann Landers: Our next door neighbor is a nice woman in her 70's.

Last week her brother became ill and she left for the coast very suddenly. She gave the key to her home to a 21-year-old grandson and asked him to keep an eye on her house.

We know for a fact that the boy has been using his grandmother's home for sex purposes. The boy and his girl friend have been to the house four times since Monday. Last night the boy drove up at 10:30 p.m. The girl arrived at 10:45 p.m. in her own car. The girl left at 3:15 a.m. and the boy left at 3:25 a.m.

I am willing to spend the money on a long-distance telephone call if you advise phoning the grandmother. -- CONCERNED

Dear Concerned: I do hope the grandmother returns soon so you folks can get some sleep. The next time you see the boy enter the house, knock on the door and tell him you wanted to make sure it was a relative and not an intruder. He will then know you are hip.

Drop it there. If the woman has asked you to keep an eye on her place, you would be expected to report to her. Since she gave the key to her grandson, she placed -- or I should say, she MISplaced -- her trust in him.

Dear Ann: Recently a man in our office was hospitalized. I'm one of those nincompoops who has more heart than brains. I sent him a large bouquet of flowers out of pure friendship but it was misunderstood.

Since the man returned to work he has been very cool. We are both married and I wonder now if perhaps his wife objected. (My husband didn't. I asked him.)

Should I tell him I'm sorry if the flowers embarrassed him -- or should I skip it? -- DUMB ME

Dear You: It would have been better, of course, if you had sent flowers with a group (cheaper, too).

Anything you say now would sound defensive and raise his eyebrows another inch -- so skip it.

If you have trouble getting along with your parents . . . if you can't get them to let you live your own life, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Bugged By Parents? How To Get More Freedom." Send 50¢ in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Dear Mr. Blanton:

On May 24 we shall be arriving in London, England, to lead a spiritual crusade that will last through July 2. The public meetings will be held at the Earls Court (the largest indoor arena in Britain) and Sembley Stadium (one of the world's largest outdoor stadiums). Hundreds of subsidiary meetings will be held in universities, factories, parks, street corners, nightclubs, churches and many other places by speakers whom I am taking from the United States.

As you know, church attendance in London is down to less than 5 percent and in some areas less than 1 percent. Church leaders, some newspaper editors, and many political leaders are not only concerned but alarmed at the rapidity of the drift to total materialism and secularism in Britain today. On April 2 of this year, Anthony Lejeune wrote an article in the DAILY TELEGRAM entitled "The Marks of Britain's Decadence." His article began: "An intelligent young woman, recently returning to Britain after working in America, told me the other day that seeing this country again with fresh eyes had profoundly shocked her. 'I really think,' she said, 'that Britain has become the most decadent nation in the Western world'." Mr. Lejeune goes on to say that the only unusual thing about this comment was that it came from an English woman. Thus the religious leaders of Britain have invited us to come and lead them in an all - out effort to reach the masses, and help halt the drift away from God and the church.

We are not sure how successful we will be, but it will be the most massive and intensive effort we have ever attempted anywhere in the world. The British television and several of the major newspapers are cooperating. We are hoping to at least start a trend back to the spiritual emphasis that helped make Britian great. At least the crusade can make religion a "talking point"--and that is better than apathy.

This summer, in America we will also face a continuing moral and spiritual crisis. In some areas they are preparing for more race riots, an alarming increase in crime, and more violent demonstrations on Vietnam. It occurred to me that the people would not only be interested in the forthcoming London meetings, but it would be refreshing news in the midst of so much bad news -- and it might have a moral and spiritual impact on this country if they could read about what is happening in London. Therefore, I wonder if you could carry frequent news stories and pictures about the crusade in London.

There are also those who say that the Ten Commandments, The Semon on the Mount, The Apostles' Creed, which I proclaim, are no longer relevant and have lost their appeal. London will be a good test case and should prove of great interest, even to the "God is dead" theologians.

We are deeply grateful for the cooperation that you and your colleagues have given in the past, and I hope that you can help us reach the people of both our countries with God's message this summer.

Most cordially yours,
Billy Graham

Catholic Population Diocese of Springfield-Cape Girardeau

SPRINGFIELD -- Catholics in the United States, Alaska and the Hawaiian Islands now number 46,246,175, according to the recently-released Official Catholic Directory for 1966.

In the Diocese of Springfield-Cape Girardeau, the Catholic population is 36,197, an increase of 244 over last year. The new total represents an 8 year increase of 7,018 over the 29,179 Catholics reported in 1957. The figures were released today by Reverend Leo W. Nugent, Bureau of Information Director for the diocese.

There are now 29 archdioceses and 121 dioceses in the United States. The Diocese of Springfield-Cape Girardeau embraces 39 counties, an area of 25,719 square miles with a total population of 832,047. Most Reverend Ignatius J. Strecker, S. T. D., is Bishop. One new parish increased to 57 the number of parishes in the diocese. A total of 122 priests administer the needs of the faithful. The national total of priests, 59,193, is the largest ever recorded.

In the diocese, there are 969 pupils in 5 high schools and 5,006 in 32 elementary schools. This represents an overall decrease of 212 pupils last year.

The further progress of religious instruction to children under release time, in religious vacation schools, and other classes, is evident in the reports of 4,326 public school children attending religious instruction classes under the auspcies of the Confraternity of Christian Doctrine, a year's increase of 290 pupils.

The upward trend in Catholic college and university enrollments for the third year is reflected by an increase of 28,735 college students or 71% more Catholic college students than 10 years ago.

The total number of American youth, including orphans, seminarians and those in protective institutions, under Catholic instruction is now 10,912,433.

Full-time teachers in the diocese of Springfield-Cape Girardeau Diocese include 27 priests, 155 Sisters, and 73 lay men and women. The full-time teaching staffs of all educational institutions under Catholic auspices in Springfield-Cape Girardeau Diocese total 225.

Those baptized in the Diocese numbered 1,293 -- 940 of them infants and 353 adult converts.

With 2,800 parishioners, Immaculate Conception parish in Springfield, is the largest parish in the Diocese, and St. Agnes Cathedral, Springfield and St. Mary's Cathedral, Cape Girardeau are next with 2,355 and 2,135 parishioners.

Little Floor Action Expected

By WILLIAM F. ARBOGAST

WASHINGTON AP -- Little floor action is expected this week in Congress but its committees will continue to grind away at legislation that may keep senators and House members in Washington until early fall.

Leaders now are hoping for adjournment by October, a month before the congressional elections.

Major committee activity this week centers on the Senate and House Foreign Affairs committees. The Senate committee gets a closed briefing today from State and Defense Department officials. Both committees resume consideration Tuesday of the annual foreign aid bill.

Legislation to regulate traffic in cats and dogs used for experimental purposes will come before the Senate Commerce Committee Tuesday.

Two Senate committees, Judiciary and Government Operations Committee will delve into such matters as drug safety, ability testing of government employes and creation of a department of transportation.

The House Judiciary Committee resumes hearings Tuesday on new civil rights legislation, while the Ways and Means Committee starts hearings today on the administration's request for an increase in the national debt limit.

That measure, slated for a House showdown Wednesday, would increase minimum wage levels from $1.25 to $1.60 over the next two years and add an estimated 7.2 million workers to the program.

The only other general bill on the House schedule would set up a rehabilitation program for narcotics addicts.

The meager Senate docket calls for consideration of the House-passed Treasury and Post Office appropriations bills and House amendments to a Senate bill that would permit the government to shift federal loans to private investors.

At least two factors are contributing to the slow-down of the legislative machinery.

Both Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield and Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of the Senate are hospitalized. Most House members are spending more time in their home districts trying to get renominated and re-elected this year. At one point last week, the House mustered only 258 of its 432 members on a roll-call vote.

The definition of an educated man, which by implication constituted an objective for all persons, but especially for graduates was given by Dean Vest C. Myers of the Cape Girardeau teachers' college at commencement exercises Monday night. Immediately before commencement was ended superintendent Roy V. Ellise, assisted by W.E. Mahew, announced these awards; Honor graduates--Betty Belle Donnell, presented a scholarship to William Woods College, Fulton; Clay Mitchell, jr., a scholarship to Cape Girardeau Teachers' College; and Esther Duncan, highest ranking commercial student, a scholarship to Draughons' Business College.

The American Legion citizenship medals were awarded to Betty Belle Donnell and Joe Dover. Trophy for the best and most versatile athlete went to Charles Rushing. Women's club medals in applied education to Lucille Hahs in home economics and Floyd Dillender in industrial arts. Music club medals went to Mary Hart in voice and Kenneth Hocker in instrumental achievement. The American History award went to John Webb Bowman. The eighth grade citizenship award went to Mildred Linn.

Mr. Ellise announced these other high school class ranking students; Junior, Gene Struwe, first and Eleanor Harty, second; sophomore, Roger Fisher and Clyde Long, tie; and freshmen, Rose Marie Schorle, Billy Van Arsdale and Berniece Husher, tie.

Highway 60 between Sikeston and Poplar Bluff has been closed since early Sunday morning on account of over flow water from Black River and prospects were that it would probably not be reopened until sometime Tuesday afternoon. All bus and automobile traffic was discontinued over the highway between Fisk and Poplar Bluff.

A crowd estimated at 4,000 persons attended Memorial services for Sikeston war dead, held Sunday afternoon at the City Cemetery, sponsored by Henry Meldrum Post of the American Legion.

THE PRAYER
For Today From The Upper Room

For this child I prayed; and the Lord hath given me my petition which I asked of him; therefore also I have lent him to the Lord; as long as he liveth he shall be lent to the Lord. (I Samuel 1:27-28)

PRAYER: Dear Lord, channel our thoughts, our actions and our prayers that we may transmit the vision we cherish to others that they may become useful in service to Thee. In Christ's name we pray. Amen.

Dear Mr. Blanton:

On May 24 we shall be arriving in London, England, to lead a spiritual crusade that will last through July 2. The public meetings will be held at the Earls Court (the largest indoor arena in Britain) and Sembley Stadium (one of the world's largest outdoor stadiums). Hundreds of subsidiary meetings will be held in universities, factories, parks, street corners, nightclubs, churches and many other places by speakers whom I am taking from the United States.

As you know, church attendance in London is down to less than 5 percent and in some areas less than 1 percent. Church leaders, some newspaper editors, and many political leaders are not only concerned but alarmed at the rapidity of the drift to total materialism and secularism in Britain today. On April 2 of this year, Anthony Lejeune wrote an article in the DAILY TELEGRAM entitled "The Marks of Britain's Decadence." His article began: "An intelligent young woman, recently returning to Britain after working in America, told me the other day that seeing this country again with fresh eyes had profoundly shocked her. 'I really think,' she said, 'that Britain has become the most decadent nation in the Western world'." Mr. Lejeune goes on to say that the only unusual thing about this comment was that it came from an English woman. Thus the religious leaders of Britain have invited us to come and lead them in an all - out effort to reach the masses, and help halt the drift away from God and the church.

We are not sure how successful we will be, but it will be the most massive and intensive effort we have ever attempted anywhere in the world. The British television and several of the major newspapers are cooperating. We are hoping to at least start a trend back to the spiritual emphasis that helped make Britian great. At least the crusade can make religion a "talking point"--and that is better than apathy.

This summer, in America we will also face a continuing moral and spiritual crisis. In some areas they are preparing for more race riots, an alarming increase in crime, and more violent demonstrations on Vietnam. It occurred to me that the people would not only be interested in the forthcoming London meetings, but it would be refreshing news in the midst of so much bad news -- and it might have a moral and spiritual impact on this country if they could read about what is happening in London. Therefore, I wonder if you could carry frequent news stories and pictures about the crusade in London.

There are also those who say that the Ten Commandments, The Semon on the Mount, The Apostles' Creed, which I proclaim, are no longer relevant and have lost their appeal. London will be a good test case and should prove of great interest, even to the "God is dead" theologians.

We are deeply grateful for the cooperation that you and your colleagues have given in the past, and I hope that you can help us reach the people of both our countries with God's message this summer.

Most cordially yours,
Billy Graham

Catholic Population Diocese of Springfield-Cape Girardeau

SPRINGFIELD -- Catholics in the United States, Alaska and the Hawaiian Islands now number 46,246,175, according to the recently-released Official Catholic Directory for 1966.

In the Diocese of Springfield-Cape Girardeau, the Catholic population is 36,197, an increase of 244 over last year. The new total represents an 8 year increase of 7,018 over the 29,179 Catholics reported in 1957. The figures were released today by Reverend Leo W. Nugent, Bureau of Information Director for the diocese.

There are now 29 archdioceses and 121 dioceses in the United States. The Diocese of Springfield-Cape Girardeau embraces 39 counties, an area of 25,719 square miles with a total population of 832,047. Most Reverend Ignatius J. Strecker, S. T. D., is Bishop. One new parish increased to 57 the number of parishes in the diocese. A total of 122 priests administer the needs of the faithful. The national total of priests, 59,193, is the largest ever recorded.

In the diocese, there are 969 pupils in 5 high schools and 5,006 in 32 elementary schools. This represents an overall decrease of 212 pupils last year.

The further progress of religious instruction to children under release time, in religious vacation schools, and other classes, is evident in the reports of 4,326 public school children attending religious instruction classes under the auspcies of the Confraternity of Christian Doctrine, a year's increase of 290 pupils.

The upward trend in Catholic college and university enrollments for the third year is reflected by an increase of 28,735 college students or 7% more Catholic college students than 10 years ago.

The total number of American youth, including orphans, seminarians and those in protective institutions, under Catholic instruction is now 10,912,433.

Full-time teachers in the diocese of Springfield-Cape Girardeau Diocese include 27 priests, 155 Sisters, and 73 lay men and women. The full-time teaching staffs of all educational institutions under Catholic auspices in Springfield-Cape Girardeau Diocese total 225.

Those baptized in the Diocese numbered 1,293 -- 940 of them infants and 353 adult converts.

With 2,800 parishioners, Immaculate Conception parish in Springfield, is the largest parish in the Diocese, and St. Agnes Cathedral, Springfield and St. Mary's Cathedral, Cape Girardeau are next with 2,355 and 2,135 parishioners.

Little Floor Action Expected

By WILLIAM F. ARBOGAST

WASHINGTON AP -- Little floor action is expected this week in Congress but its committees will continue to grind away at legislation that may keep senators and House members in Washington until early fall.

Leaders now are hoping for adjournment by October, a month before the congressional elections.

Major committee activity this week centers on the Senate and House Foreign Affairs committees. The Senate committee gets a closed briefing today from State and Defense Department officials. Both committees resume consideration Tuesday of the annual foreign aid bill.

Legislation to regulate traffic in cats and dogs used for experimental purposes will come before the Senate Commerce Committee Tuesday.

Two Senate committees, Judiciary and Government Operations Committee will delve into such matters as drug safety, ability testing of government employes and creation of a department of transportation.

The House Judiciary Committee resumes hearings Tuesday on new civil rights legislation, while the Ways and Means Committee starts hearings today on the administration's request for an increase in the national debt limit.

That measure, slated for a House showdown Wednesday, would increase minimum wage levels from $1.25 to $1.60 over the next two years and add an estimated 7.2 million workers to the program.

The only other general bill on the House schedule would set up a rehabilitation program for narcotics addicts.

The meager Senate docket calls for consideration of the House-passed Treasury and Post Office appropriations bills and House amendments to a Senate bill that would permit the government to shift federal loans to private investors.

At least two factors are contributing to the slow-down of the legislative machinery.

Both Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield and Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of the Senate are hospitalized. Most House members are spending more time in their home districts trying to get renominated and re-elected this year. At one point last week, the House mustered only 258 of its 432 members on a roll-call vote.

Bonds To Remain Valid

CHARLESTON -- There have been rumors floating around this area that bonds for a new $1,400,000 high school would be declared invalid because of the fact that a portion of 33 acres of land that was transfefred from the Charleston District to the East Prairie District last week.

Clifton Banta, Charleston District Attorney, and W. R. Pierce, Supt. of Charleston Schools, said this morning that the bonds were not going to be ruled invalid.

Banta said there was nothing to the rumors.
